Florence Chadwick's Day

Hi! Today is S-Day minus six as we head down the home stretch. I suppose it has crept up on you, just as it has crept up on all of us—the fact that one week from today we will know if the Strait of Juan de Fuca can be conquered by a swimmer. This week will contain the excitement of the week before Christmas; the preparations of the week before final exams and the nervous suspense of the week before a dentist appointment.

On the actual day of the swim I don't think I will be nervous. It's just that, come swim time, my mind is full of questions about tides and temperatures and when I start, I think, "Well, here we go again; I wonder how we'll make out."

We will be ever so much closer to the swim Tuesday when my navigator, Frank Seehorn, arrives in Victoria. A real dynamo of a man Frank will swing into action immediately. He will be up to his ears in tide tables and temperature charts and he will be talking to local experts about the strait.

On Wednesday, we are scheduled to take another trip to Port Angeles and Seehorn will really be a busy fellow over there. He will be gathering information in Port Angeles to help him plot the course of his swim.

On Friday, my brother Dick will arrive in town and will start work on his specialty—the coaching boat. Dick will make sure the boat is fully equipped for the trip over and will lay away supplies for feeding me while I am swimming.

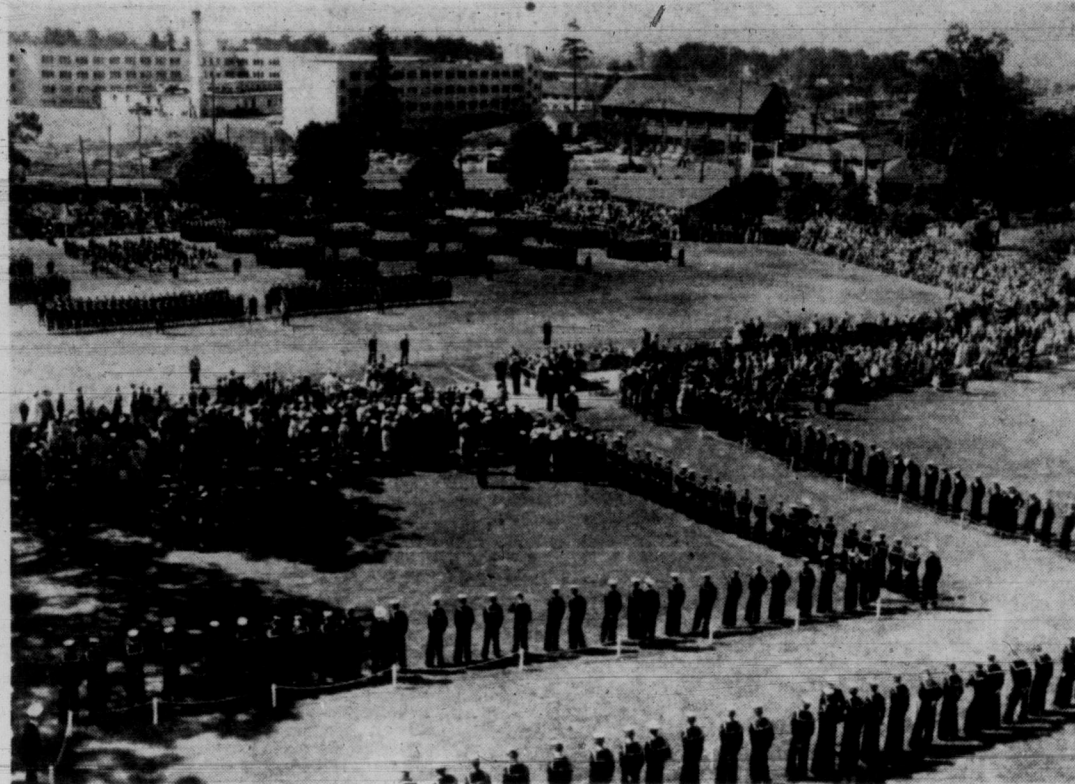

We logged some valuable swimming time over the weekend. Jack Todd has gone over to the Empire Games in Vancouver but Al Boyd and Ken Hain, a pair of excellent rowers, helped coach Archie McKinnon out. We did two hours Thursday, three hours Friday, four hours Saturday and tapered off with one hour Sunday. Saturday we swam out past the Willows Beach, the Oak Bay bathhouse and around to the sixth hole of Oak Bay Golf Club.

My swims this week start at 10 a.m. in the morning.

Aggrieved Mule Gets To Seat of Trouble

NAPLES, Italy (AP)—An aggrieved mule, apparently furious because other animals were fed first, leaped out of his stall and bit farmer Gennaro Casertano, 35, from behind today.

After operating for three hours, surgeons said Casertano will be well within 60 days, although he may not be able to sit comfortably for a long time after that.

Naden Parade Square as Duke and Party Leave

5,000 Cheer Philip At Naval Ceremony

RCN Stages Impressive Show for Duke; Leaves by Plane Today En Route to Kemano

By MONTE ROBERTS

A once-in-a-lifetime privilege came to the officers and men of the Pacific Command, Royal Canadian Navy, today.

They were visited by an Admiral of the Fleet, the highest rank in the tradition-wrapped Royal Navy.

Throughout most of his Canadian tour, His Royal Highness, Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, will receive warm welcomes as a representative of the Crown.

But at HMCS Naden and HMC Dockyard today, he was greeted with the respect and honor due to a man who has seen his share of fighting at sea, and is the top-ranking officer of all the Commonwealth navies.

When the Admiral of the Fleet arrived at the upper playing field, in front of the Naden Wardroom, precisely at 10 a.m., he saw unfaltering ranks of blue-clad men, their summer "white-tops" glistening in the sun, the Queen's Color whipping smartly in a brisk salt breeze blowing in from Esquimalt Harbor.

In bleachers around the temporary parade square, 5,000 watched the Duke leave his open car, and walk to the reviewing stand. He was greeted formally by Rear Admiral J. C. Hibbard, Flag Officer, Pacific Command, seconds before the trumpeter of the Naden band signalled his arrival on the stand.

The Duke wore the No. 5 blue service dress uniform of admiral of the fleet. His ribbons were: 1939-45 Star, Atlantic Star, Africa Star, Burma Star with Rosette, Italy Star, War Medal, George VI Coronation Medal, Order of the Redeemer (Greek), Military Cross (Greek), Royal Order of the Phoenix (Greek), Royal Order of George I (Greek), War Cross (Greek).

Croix de Guerre with Palm (French).

As he stood on the reviewing stand, the guard of honor presented arms, the Color was dipped, and from the saluting base at Naden barracks a 21-gun Royal salute was sounded.

The Duke stood stiffly at salute during this portion of the ceremony, which honored him as a member of the Royal family.

At its conclusion, he stepped off the reviewing stand to take up his duties as Admiral of the Fleet.

Walking at a brisk pace, he led an inspection party, first through the ranks of the guard of honor, then among the naval cadets assembled in long straight ranks across the field.

Although he walked quickly, the Duke did not neglect his duties. He stopped frequently as he caught the eye of one or another of the cadets, and chatted informally.

SALUTES SPECTATORS

At first, his eyes were only for the naval personnel he was reviewing. But each time he neared a section of the bleachers, which were jammed tight with spectators, a spontaneous burst of applause greeted him. Finally, he could resist no longer. A broad grin burst over his tanned, handsome face, and he threw an informal salute.

Two Island Men Killed In Week-End Car Crashes

British Columbia recorded six violent deaths during the week-end.

Dead are: George Hamilton, a Port Alberni hospital orderly, was killed Sunday when his car hit an abutment on the bridge over Whisky Creek, near Cameron Lake. (See story page 7.)

Paul Binder, 19, of Duncan was killed early Sunday when the car he was driving went out of control three miles east of Cowichan Lake. A companion, 19-year-old Rosemarie Arnold, escaped serious injury.

Jimmy Scott, 6, of North Vancouver drowned Saturday when he was pulled under the water by an undertow at Crescent Beach. An eight-year-old girl accompanying the lad said when she ran into the side of a Vancouver police car Sunday night. The woman's name has not been released.

In Vancouver a 71-year-old woman was reported in satisfactory condition in hospital Sunday after having a leg amputated. She was injured when she ran into the side of a Vancouver police car Sunday night. The woman's name has not been released.

PROTOCOL SOLVED... WALLACE STAYS HOME

Royal protocol posed a touchy problem today which Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace solved by deciding to stay home from the Duke of Edinburgh's formal visit to the Royal Canadian Navy's Pacific command headquarters at Esquimalt.

Wallace is the Queen's representative in British Columbia, and protocol normally would decree that he be accorded honors due his rank when he appears officially on his home grounds unless Queen Elizabeth herself was the guest. But the Duke is not the sovereign—he is the province's guest, and with the lieutenant-governor safely at home in Government House, the possibility of collision of rank was neatly avoided.

It was a courtesy extended to a guest by his host. Wallace greeted the Duke when he arrived from Ottawa and Rivers, Man., Sunday, and the Duke stayed overnight at Government House Sunday night.

John David Craft, 16, of Abbotsford, killed when his old model convertible rolled over several times on the highway three miles east of Abbotsford. The deaths of Capt. Matile.

Pakistan Team Happy; $1,505 Recovered
VANCOUVER (CP)—It was smiles instead of tears today for members of the Pakistan team in the British Empire Games here.

Police reported that $1,505 in cash carried away in a 250-pound strongbox from Empire Village on Friday was recovered intact.

Beaver Lake Claims Life Of Woman, 26

Victim Was Jubilee Lab Technician

By PETE LOUDON

A 26-year-old Jubilee Hospital laboratory technician, Miss Pauline Rowbotham, was identified by Saanich police today as Victoria's first summer drowning victim.

Her body was recovered from Beaver Lake at about 8 p.m. Sunday.

Miss Rowbotham, who lived at 1726 Carrick Street, was one of a party of eight girls, mostly hospital workers, who went to the lake for an after-supper swim.

One of her companions, Miss Audrey Ellis, also a lab worker, said there was no apparent reason for the tragedy. The girls missed Miss Rowbotham while changing after their swim.

Miss Ellis recalled that she had last seen her friend sitting on a raft, but no one had seen her swimming. Friends began diving after a beach search revealed nothing. The body was found a few moments later, by Lloyd Scott, 1194 Old Esquimalt Road. He found the dead woman face down on the lake bottom about 75 feet off-shore.

Brentwood electrical contractor, Victor Dawson applied artificial respiration until firemen arrived from Saanich with a resuscitator. The firemen worked on the girl until the arrival of Dr. E. L. McEwen, who pronounced life extinct.

Parents of the dead girl, Mr. and Mrs. William Rowbotham, Stranraer, Sask., were notified and were expected to arrive here today by plane. Also notified were cousins, Mr. and Mrs. J. Sims, 2834 Adelaide.

Miss Rowbotham had been employed at Jubilee for two years. She was a graduate of the University of Saskatchewan.

Sh is survived by one sister and five brothers.

Miss Ellis said her friend was in excellent health and was always interested in athletics. She took part in curling and tennis but was not a very good swimmer.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by McCall Brothers.

Saanich police said an inquest into the drowning will be held at McCall Brothers Wednesday at 10 a.m., coroner E. C. Hart presiding.

PARIS (AP)—Associated Press correspondent John Roderick filed a short story in Indo-China for relay to Paris today. It was only 67 words. The Viet Namese military censor blue-pencilled all of them.

The dispatch arrived as follows:

"SAIGON, Aug. 2 (AP)—67 words censored by the Viet Nam military censor."

Conditional Permit Granted Frobisher

TRAIL—Lands and Forests Minister R. E. Sommers today announced the provincial government has given the go-ahead to Frobisher-Ventures plan for development of B.C.'s northwest.

Northwest Power Industries Ltd., one of the Frobisher-Ventures group of companies, will be awarded a conditional water license to initiate a development that will "entail expenditures in the neighborhood of $270,000,000 within an eight-year span, and eventually lead to a program estimated at over $700,000,000," said Mr. Sommers.

The first step of the development will provide 120,000 horsepower by 1957, leading to the first major objective of 880,000 horsepower by 1962.

Speaking before a Social Credit Day rally in his home-riding, Mr. Sommers said: "As evidence of their preparedness and good faith, Northwest Power Industries Ltd. will post a very substantial bond of dollars... which will be subject to annual review, and will be forfeited in the event the company fails in any respect to live up to the terms of agreement."

He added: "In such an event, the company not only will lose the amount of the bond, but also the value of the work accomplished to that time, together with the license to water rights."

"The company will receive no concessions in taxes, they will be required to clear areas to be flooded, and they will pay full rates for water used."

He said many other sections of the province would benefit through the utilization of iron, copper, asbestos, and other ores found in all parts of B.C.

Negotiations have been completed with Northwest Power Industries Ltd. but numerous other interests, including Frobisher, Quebec Metallurgical Industries, Falconbridge Nickel, and Reynolds Aluminum are participating in the overall plan.

Trinidad on Top

The man who was expected to show his heels to all comers in the 100-yard race at the British Empire Games Saturday had to settle for third place. A 19-year-old student from Trinidad, Michael Agostini, centre, equalled the Games record of 9.6 seconds for the 100-yard dash to edge Canada's Don MacFarlane, left, and Australia's Hector "Hurricane" Heenan, co-holder of the world 100-yard record of 9.3.

Guatemala Faces New Rebellion

GUATEMALA CITY (AP)—Cadets and officers of Guatemala's Military Academy revolted this morning. Forces of the government of Col. Carlos Castillo Armas moved to put down the rebellion.

Troops of the Aurora army base at the Guatemala airport were reported to have joined the rebellious cadets. Other reports said Communist elements, defeated in a brief civil war that ousted Red supporters from the government last month, had mobilized.

Tense B.E.G. Races Expected Tuesday

By BILL WALKER
Times Sports Editor

VANCOUVER—The track and field stadium was figuratively "dark" at the British Empire Games here today.

The spotlight switched from the stadium to the cycle track and, more especially, the Games' swim pool on the University of B.C. campus, and there is electric tension in the air concerning Tuesday's track events.

Topping the list is the torrid duel expected in the men's 880-yard final. Favored is England's champion, 19-year-old Derek Johnson, who Saturday came within four-tenths of the Games' record of 1:52 in winning his heat.

Sheila Lerwill of England, the world's high jump record holder, is expected to receive her stiffest competition from Vancouver's Canadian champion and record holder, Alice Whitty, in that event. Mike Agostini of Trinidad, the 100-yard champion, will renew his rivalry with Hector Hogan of Australia in the heats and semis of the 220-yard sprint.

Parnell, Doug Clement and Rich Ferguson, any one of whom is capable of scrambling the form chart.

There is also the meeting between Fred Green and Chris Chataway of England in the three-mile event. The English pair are co-holders of the world record.

Sheila Lerwill of England, the world's high jump record holder, is expected to receive her stiffest competition from Vancouver's Canadian champion and record holder, Alice Whitty, in that event. Mike Agostini of Trinidad, the 100-yard champion, will renew his rivalry with Hector Hogan of Australia in the heats and semis of the 220-yard sprint.

She Laing of Jamaica, who was eliminated in the 100-yard preliminaries Saturday, is also regarded as a serious threat. (See Sports Pages.)

4-Foot, 11-Inch Suspect Held In Slaying of Montreal Boy

QUEBEC (CP)—Police today swept into a lower town tenement and took into custody a little man sought for questioning in connection with the fiendish Montreal killing of six-year-old Raymond Trudeau.

The Quebec City constables hustled 43-year-old Lucien Picard into a patrol wagon and drove him to police headquarters.

Montreal police disclosed Sunday night they sought Picard, a four-foot 11-inch unemployed machinist, as a material witness in the death of the youngster, parts of whose dismembered body were found in the metropolis during the week-end.

Acting on a tip, Quebec police descended on the St. Luc street tenement building at 9:45 a.m. and took Picard to headquarters without allowing him time to put on his trousers.

Police said Picard told them he had found huddled pieces of a boy's body in a suitcase in his room in Montreal but denied any connection with the case. He said that after seeing the ghastly sight he decided to leave. Picard travelled by bus to Quebec Saturday and visited relatives at nearby Ancienne Lorette where he stayed until Sunday. He moved then to the St. Luc Street house in the workers' district of St. Saviour, police said.

Deputy police chief Aime Guillemette said Picard, a Quebecer, had been in Montreal for some time and had been living in the same Montreal room for three months.

No charge has been laid against Picard who will be held until Montreal police pick him up here later today.

Assistant Inspector Henry Bond of the homicide squad in Montreal reported that three large knives and blood-stained bed sheets were found Sunday in the room occupied by Picard. The torso was found in a cheap saloon.

Raymond was last seen by a playmate Wednesday talking to a man near his home. First identification of his remains were made by his broken-hearted father, David Trudeau, a 34-year-old boilershop worker.

Then Sunday roomers noticed a death-like odor rising from Picard's room and called the proprietor. He smashed the padlock on the room and found a suitcase with the rest of Raymond's body.

The torso had been hacked open from neck to stomach. Attached to it were parts of the boy's arms.

U.S. Pilots' Walkout Seen Spreading

United, TWA Vote In Favor of Strike

CHICAGO (UP)—Pilots for United Air Lines and Trans-World Airlines have voted in favor of strike action, raising the possibility that a nation-wide American airlines walkout may spread.

The United and TWA strike votes, held last night, set no date for a walkout. Clarence Sayen, president of the AFL Air Line Pilots Association, said there were no immediate indications that pilots for the two systems would join the American strikers.

The American strike meanwhile went into its third day, with no signs of settlement in sight. The walkout of 1,200 pilots has completely idled the coast-to-coast system.

The American walkout, which began Saturday, immediately threw a heavier burden on other airlines. A few delays were reported, but most large airports said no one had been left stranded.

American pilots walkout was in protest against new non-stop, coast-to-coast flights which might take more than eight hours. The ALPA said the flights violated safety considerations and a 23-year-old working rule limiting flights to eight hours.

Silverberg Takes Title

EDMONTON (CP)—Doug Silverberg of Red Deer, Canadian international and Alberta Willingdon Cup golfer, kept company with par around most of Edmonton's tough Mayfair links Sunday to take the provincial amateur match-play title for the first time.

Silverberg defeated Mike Pyke of the Calgary Country Club, former Saskatchewan and Quebec Willingdon performer, 4 and 3 in the 36-hole final.

Brandon Mayor Fails To Get Duke's Autograph

RIVERS, Man. (CP)—"If I were to give you my autograph, 1,000,000 people would know about it within a week," said the duke.

So Mayor James Creighton of Brandon didn't get the autograph of the Duke of Edinburgh, who stopped over briefly here Sunday on his three-week tour of Canada.

Crowded Cathedral Hears Dr. Elliott

By W. S. HENDERSON

Reminiscent of great congregations which crowded Christ Church Cathedral on ritualistic or national occasions of widest interest was the throng which Rev. H. Spencer Elliott, DD, faced when he returned yesterday, the Seventh Sunday after Trinity, at choral Eucharist, to the pulpit.

Dr. Elliott was dean of the cathedral for 10 years.

The congregation included not only hundreds who knew the former dean and rector personally but a number of visitors from the United States who had followed the practice of many summer tourists and attended in order not only to see the widely-known edifice from the outside but also to make acquaintance with its interior when occupied in ceremonial by clergy, choir and worshippers.

Dr. Elliott made passing reference to the international character of the throng now visiting B.C. when so many young men and women from far parts of the world are competing in the British Empire Games at Vancouver.

PAN-ANGELICAN MEET

From that he passed on to the world event at Minneapolis, the Pan-Anglican Congress, which this week takes so much of the attention of Anglicans wherever their church is active throughout the world, but also the attention of Christians of many faiths.

Necessarily, Dr. Elliott said,

He Made It

Maj. Lloyd Hill, of Niagara Falls, Ont., 35-year-old paratrooper turned daredevil, successfully shot the boiling Niagara Rapids in a barrel Friday. Now he is determined to risk his life going over the famous falls themselves. Hill's barrel, seen at right, was the lightest ever used to ride the rapids. It is a shell of one-eighth-inch steel with no inner lining or air space. It is weighted on the bottom with 147 pounds of angle steel to keep it upright. Hill was whirled around the deadly lower rapids whirlpool for three hours before he was swept into calm waters and pulled to safety.

Brandon Mayor Fails To Get Duke's Autograph

RIVERS, Man. (CP)—"If I were to give you my autograph, 1,000,000 people would know about it within a week," said the duke.

So Mayor James Creighton of Brandon didn't get the autograph of the Duke of Edinburgh, who stopped over briefly here Sunday on his three-week tour of Canada.

"He started asking the questions," said Mr. Creighton. "All I did was answer them."

After the duke passed around to the rest of the guests, he returned to the mayor.

"That's when I asked him for his autograph," Mr. Creighton said. "I wanted to give it to the kids. He told me he was sorry but the Royal Family never did give autographs."

Mayor Creighton then told reporters:

"Don't you go saying I was disappointed in the duke. He's a fine fellow. He's easy to talk to and as casual as an ordinary man."

"Heck, he could even get elected mayor in Brandon."

U.S. Fears Red Challenge, Rhee Charges

'Fight or Perish' He Tells U.S. Vets

NEW YORK (UP)—Delivering a keynote speech Sunday night at the Veterans of Foreign Wars convention, South Korea president, Syngman Rhee criticized United States foreign policy for showing "signs of fear" in the face of the Communist challenge.

He said the American people must be "persuaded" that free nations must fight the Communists "now or later, and that the longer we wait the greater the odds against us."

Rhee said that what he was asking for was not "a declaration of war."

"The problem is the creation of an awareness that we must fight or perish, and the taking of steps to get ready—spiritually, morally and materially to fight for our freedom," he said.

Rhee told the veterans it will be "impossible to save Asia" from communism unless China is liberated from its Red masters.

"If we set a definite plan and persistently carry it out, we will get the Chinese behind the bamboo curtain to start fighting the Communists wherever they are," he said.

Earlier in Washington the 79-year-old statesman said he would not be "afraid" if a resumption of Korean fighting touched off a third world war.

"Many people say that if we try to drive the Communist force of 1,000,000 men from North Korea, it will mean world war," he said. "They speak of the terrible atomic and hydrogen bombs which will destroy civilization itself in a few moments."

"Yes, it is terrible, but to them I say, we have something more powerful than the H-bomb—we have God with us."

After the duke passed around to the rest of the guests, he returned to the mayor.

"That's when I asked him for his autograph," Mr. Creighton said. "I wanted to give it to the kids. He told me he was sorry but the Royal Family never did give autographs."

BLONDE DIVORCEE IN CUSTODY

Shot London Producer Regains Consciousness

DEVIZES, Eng. (Reuters)—Lord Vivian, London stage producer, found shot in the stomach and wrists in a cottage near here Saturday, regained consciousness in hospital Sunday night.

Mrs. Mary Wheeler, 40-year-old blonde divorcee, has been remanded in custody at a special court, charged with unlawfully and maliciously wounding Vivian.

Hospital authorities Sunday night said the condition of the 49-year-old peer was "slightly improved, but still seriously."

Lady Vivian, who spent several hours at his bedside Saturday, visited the hospital again Sunday and stayed with him half an hour. Vivian, who once worked as a call-boy in a San Francisco theatre and a reporter in Edmonton and Vancouver, is well known as theatrical impresario, critic and author.

Twice-married Mrs. Wheeler is the former wife of Sir Mortimer Wheeler, a distinguished British archaeologist and popular television personality.

Suicide Attempt Leads to Death Of Five in Paris

PARIS (AP)—Mourning the death of her sister, an elderly spinster sought her own death by turning on the gas in her apartment Sunday.

A neighbor, worried over the spinster's despondency, rang the doorbell to the shabby little apartment, which overlooks the Seine river and Notre Dame Cathedral.

The electric spark set off a series of explosions that killed five persons, injured eight, wrecked three stories of the building and damaged a fourth. Among the dead were the spinster, the concierge, a young woman and two firemen.

Canadian Cavalcade of Jets To Tour West for Three Weeks

'TURMOIL' ADDS TO TURMOIL AS TUGMAN'S BLOOD BOILS

(From UP and AP Dispatches)
HARWICH, Eng.—The indignant owner of a French fishing boat found himself towed into this port along with the hulk of the 2,055-ton Norwegian freighter, Mildred, and threatened to sue.
Dan Mallet, owner of the French trawler, Gai Floreal, was dragged along unwillingly when the powerful British salvage tug, Turmoil, put a line aboard the Mildred.
A fight for salvage rights, between the French trawler and the veteran Turmoil, began after the ship was stranded in flames.
All 29 passengers and crew aboard were safely landed at Gravesend by a British coal ship.
The Anglo-French "salvage struggle" began after the French trawler Gai Floreal put two men aboard, hoisted the French flag and made a bid to tow the freighter.
The 1,136-ton British Turmoil came on the scene and, after putting the flames under control, began her own tow. The French trawler refused to let go, made fast astern, and was also towed along.

Poland Claims Ships Strafed by U.S. Planes

Files Protest Over Reported Incident In South China Sea; Requests Guarantee

LONDON (UP)—Communist Poland has protested to the United States against the alleged strafing of two Polish freighters in the South China Sea by American fighter planes which shot down two Red Chinese aircraft last week.
The text of the Polish protest note was broadcast today by the Communist News Agency PAP and was monitored here.
Red China, in its protest of its two fighters, also charged that the Polish freighters were strafed.
The United States, which announced the Communist planes were shot down after they attacked U.S. aircraft searching for possible survivors of a British commercial airliner, downed by Red China's fighter planes, were not attacked, although they fired on the U.S. planes.
PAP said the Polish protest was delivered on Saturday to the U.S. Embassy in Warsaw.
It said "the Polish government demands that those guilty be punished and that instructions be issued guaranteeing that occurrences of this kind will not be repeated."

Henry Jones Dead at 95; Rites Tuesday

Funeral services for Henry Humphrey Jones, 95, a well-known resident of Victoria who died at the Royal Jubilee Hospital Saturday, will be held at Hayward's chapel at 1.30 p.m. Tuesday.
Born in Newtonville, Ont., Mr. Jones came to Victoria in 1897, and for a number of years operated an investment business in the city. At the end of the First World War he prospected in the Anderson Lake and Bridge River district in the Interior for several years.
Mr. Jones resided at 710 Fort Street with his daughter, Miss J. H. E. Jones, and son, Aubrey. He is also survived by a son, Dr. R. H. B. Jones, in San Francisco; a daughter, Mrs. A. N. S. Beaton, at Matsqui; a niece, Mrs. H. D. Middleton of Victoria, and nieces in the United States.

Canuck Cricket Team Leads MCC With Match End in Sight

LONDON (CP)—The Marylebone Cricket Club today declared at 208 runs for six wickets at the lunch interval in a match at Lord's against the touring Canadian team. MCC thus trailed by 111 runs the Canadian first-innings score of 319 for 9 declared.
Canada in her second innings had scored 55 for 1.

French Troops Battle Reds With Fists

HANOI, Indo-China (UP)—French troops and Communist Indo-Chinese supporters fought each other with bare fists and bamboo sticks in the Red River Delta Sunday, the French high command said today.
French authorities feared serious trouble lay ahead.
The trouble started when unarmed French patrols were ordered to tear down Red flags in dozens of Delta villages. They met fierce resistance in many cases, mostly from women.
Since the ceasefire went into effect July 27 the Reds have been putting up triumphal arches, draped with the colors of Red China and Russia, over principal Delta highways.
French authorities said that if the Communists do not immediately order an end to the flag-flying and demonstrations, the situation rapidly will become "extremely grave."

OTTAWA (CP)—The largest cavalcade of jets ever to visit western Canada leaves on a three-week tour this month, air force headquarters announced today.

A force of 15 jets, made up of equal numbers of CF-100 Canucks and F-86 Sabre fighters, will assemble in Winnipeg from eastern Canada bases Aug. 13. It takes off from there on a tour designed to give residents in 50 prairie and west coast centres their first look at the RCAF's jet fighters and trainers in massed flight.

The tour also is to give pilots an ground crew, who will follow the swifter planes in big C-119 Flying Boxcars, experience in operational mobility.
Dubbed Operation Prairie-Pacific, the tour will be under command of Wing Cmdr. C. C. Lee, 38, of Vancouver.

The air force announcement said the itinerary planned is subject to changes, dictated by weather. The tentative schedule:
Aug. 13-18, Winnipeg and district points; Aug. 19-23, Saskatoon; Aug. 20, fly to Regina and return; Aug. 24-27, Calgary; Aug. 28, fly to Edmonton and return; Aug. 28-Sept. 3, Vancouver.

DUKE'S PILOT NEPHEW OF LOCAL MAN

Frank Landry, of 30 Government Street, met his nephew Sunday, and it was rather an unusual meeting.
The nephew, Gerard Migneault, 38, is pilot of the Duke of Edinburgh's plane, and Mr. Landry had a 30-minute chat with him right out at the plane itself after arrival at Patricia Bay Sunday afternoon.
"The RCMP were very good, and let me through without any trouble," said Mr. Landry.
The plane which carried the Duke here is the one used by Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent in his recent round-the-world jaunt. He was piloted on this trip by Mr. Landry's nephew also.

The RCAF veteran is the nephew of Leopoldine, Mr. Landry's wife—her brother's son. They saw him last in his birthplace, Lisverde, Que., well over 20 years ago.
Later this week there will be a family reunion at the Landry's place. Gerard Migneault will be there, together with Mr. Landry's brother-in-law Alex, and his son Thomas from Gull Lake, Sask.

Seven Players Hurt

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—A free-for-all fight during the San Antonio-Oklahoma City Texas-League ball game Sunday night sent one player to a hospital and brought injuries to six others.
Some 50 fans got into the scrap which was touched off by trouble between Jim Neufeldt of Oklahoma City and witty Quintana of Antonio, over a play at second base, with players from both teams mixing it freely.

EVEN COURT STARTLED

Coffin Defense Calls No Witnesses

PERCE, Que. (CP)—The defense today announced it will not call any witnesses in the murder trial of Wilbert Coffin, 43-year-old prospector charged with the bushland slaying of Richard Lindsey, 17, of Holidaysburg, Pa., more than a half-dozen years ago.
Immediately after the Crown finished calling its witnesses in the 16-day-old trial, defense counsel Raymond Maker announced: "The defense rests."
He did not elaborate on the defense's decision and Mr. Justice Gerard Lacroix ordered an adjournment until Tuesday morning, when the Crown begins summing up its case.

The Crown—which called two Quebec provincial police officers to the witness box today—called a total of 85 persons to testify. Spectators and even members of the court appeared startled when Maher announced his decision following testimony by Capt. J. Alphonse Matte and Capt. Raoul Siros. Matte testified regarding a grey suitcase, towels and jeans which he said he received from another detective last Aug. 12 and 15.
Siros identified a bottle of syrup that cropped up in evidence frequently as having been bought by him sometime before last Aug. 27, date of the second coroner's inquest.

Bey of Tunis Names Ben Amar To Form New Government

TUNIS, Tunisia (Reuters)—The Bey of Tunis today appointed Ben Amar, Independent Nationalist president of the chamber of agriculture, as new prime minister of this French protectorate.
Ben Amar's task is to set up a new government to negotiate with the French on details of Tunisian home rule, offered by French Premier Mendes-France on his one-day visit here Saturday.

TUNIS, Tunisia (UP)—France today released all leaders of the Tanatically-nationalistic Neo-Destour (independence) party from detention in another move to relax tension caused by terrorists.
The leaders, including party director Mongi Slim, had lived in forced residence under police surveillance.

Release of the nationalists was the first concrete step in French Premier Pierre Mendes-France's project to end terrorism in Tunisia and build harmony between France and its protectorate.
Habib Bourghiba, accepted chief of the nationalists, remained, however, in forced residence in France but political sources said he, too, might be released soon.
Mendes-France flew to Tunis two days ago in a dramatic visit to present personally to the bey his plan for Tunisian home rule.
Today the bey began conferring with Tunisian nationalist politicians to form a new all-Tunisian government.

Defeat and Victory

AT THE VERY MOMENT WHEN it has suffered a shattering military and diplomatic defeat in South-east Asia, the Western world is rebuilding its strength in the Near East, an area of at least equal strategic importance.

Months of patient negotiation have succeeded in repairing the lunacies of Dr. Mossadegh in Iran, where the huge oil industry, formerly owned by British interests, is about to be re-opened. Saved from its brief dictatorship, Iran remains a partner of the West, despite all Russia's efforts to lure or bully it into the communist orbit. The NATO defence line, starting on the north by Norway can now be seen running across Europe to Greece, eastward to Turkey, and through Iran to Pakistan.

Meanwhile Sir Winston Churchill no doubt reluctantly but with a sure grasp of global strategy—apparently has come to terms with Egypt in the Suez. Britain will gradually withdraw some 80,000 troops from the Canal Zone (originally acquired by one of Sir Winston's predecessors, Benjamin Disraeli) and can now deploy these forces at more dangerous points of world friction.

At first sight Britain seems to have lost its long struggle for the Canal to the new nationalism of Egypt, and some Conservative politicians in London have revolted against their Government's policy. But as both British and American statesmanship have seen from the beginning, the West's great objective in the dangerous lands along the eastern Mediterranean is not the Canal but agreement with the local populations, and a stable political situation throughout the Near East, a prize sought by Russia long before communism was invented.

If, therefore, Britain has managed, with American backing, to make a durable settlement with Egypt and Iran, it must be regarded as a notable stroke of diplomacy and a grave disappointment to Russia. Will it prove possible to reach similar agreement with the dubious peoples of Southeast Asia and erect there a line of Western defence with their consent? That is the next great question on the agenda of the free world and the answer given to it will deeply affect the prospects of war or peace.

Charges and Counter-Charges

THE ATTACK BY SENATOR Ralph Flanders, a Republican from Vermont, on Senator McCarthy, has run into the inevitable reply. Flanders, in a formal Senate speech, charged that the Wisconsin member has been acting in a manner "unbecoming a member of the United States Senate," and has brought that body into disrepute. The immediate counter-charge from McCarthy supporters was that Flanders was merely the unwitting tool of communist interests, that he was unknowingly being drawn into doing a job for Moscow.

Such a reply could very well have been predicted. It has been raised before when the actions of ambitious demagogues have been protested. And it is routine with Senator McCarthy to answer one charge with another, to cover an accuser with mud.

But while McCarthy and his supporters seek to turn the tables on their opponents and sidestep the very pertinent charge that the standard of conduct of the Wisconsin politician has been anything but senatorial, they also obscure the fact that McCarthy himself, the witch-hunter, has done far more than communist spies and agents within the past year or two to weaken the world prestige of the United States. It would be impossible to assess the value of the ammunition he has given to the enemies of democracy—ammunition which will be used to the detriment of the United States and its allies for years to come. By his witch-hunting, his renunciation of democratic processes in establishing guilt, by his ruthless trampling of justice and fair play in furthering his personal career, he has sown doubts among his country's allies, raised derision among neutrals, and given encouragement to its enemies.

Senator Flanders spoke for millions of his countrymen in urging formal condemnation of the Senator's methods. He reflected, too, the sentiments of millions outside the United States, who acknowledge the leadership of that country, and wish to see it progress for the benefit of the free nations.

Senator Flanders has been accused of being, through his resolution, "on the same side" with the Daily Worker. But that communist journal, in a truthful moment, would be forced to admit that Senator McCarthy has done the best job for the Kremlin of any man in the United States today.

Friendship Through Pictures

MRS. ROSE LESSER IS A FACULTY member of Hosei University, Japan. Recently, to show appreciation for a courtesy extended to her college by The Christian Science Monitor, she selected an attractive silk painting done by a Japanese artist and forwarded it to the publishing company. Now it hangs in the lobby of the publishing house.

In an interesting interchange of correspondence Mrs. Lesser has explained her belief in the benefit of exchanging pictures. With a minor slip in idiom here and there, but no faltering in sentiment, she writes:

"Just imagine, how lovely would it be when we, instead of having to look at hospital-like bare, naked walls in our schools, could have in each classroom one picture of a different country, showing its best! Right from our early childhood we could get used to see these lovely images from far away. Let them speak to us, and thus carry them forever in our heart as a treasure that no later political confusions, temporarily shaking a country, could blacken out of our mind!"

The concept is pleasing. It is one, moreover, which might be translated into actuality with a view to improving international relations—showing strangers objects of beauty and value which might counteract the too frequent inclination to contemplate what is bad in a foreign land.

An Artistic Triumph

THE second season of first-class music in one of North America's most enchanting gardens came to a close last Thursday evening at Benvenuto.

The program was particularly appropriate for the occasion. Mr. Hans Gruber chose familiar selections for the Victoria Symphony. Weather and other conditions combined to make the event one of near perfection.

It is not known, as this is written, whether the Butchart Garden symphonies will be repeated next year. The concerts are costly. To be maintained they require probably greater support from the public than they have received this season.

Despite the weather risk, there can be no question that they have been a distinct attraction to be remembered by all who attended them.

The owner-proprietor of Butchart's, Mr. Ian Ross, will no doubt give serious thought to their continuance in 1955. It is to be hoped he will find a solution to the expense problems and that the Gardens, renowned throughout the world for their beauty, will again enjoy the added appeal of music next summer.

Sona on His Lips

SOME OF THE WORLD'S WORST bathos comes from the popular song writers. They can take sentiment, translate it into sentimentality and then decorate the depreciated product with gobs of emotional marshmallowism until the result oozes below sickness.

Yet despite the industry's too frequent saccharine distillations, the maker of good songs holds a high place in the public's heart.

Probably no one on this continent has enjoyed greater popularity in that field than the man North America knows as Irving Berlin. To him countless thousands—or more probably millions—owe the pleasure they have received from the tune that springs to the lips, or is heard over international airwaves.

Irving Berlin produced the boisterous, swinging "Alexander's Ragtime Band." He composed the soft, plaintive delicacy of "The Russian Lullaby." He gave dozens of songs to an eager public and he grew famous in the giving.

Now Irving Berlin has been awarded a special medal by President Eisenhower with the authorization of Congress. It might, quite as justifiably, have been an international award.

Irving Berlin put a song on the world's lips and in its heart. If, at times, the song has been too richly garnished—well, there's a place for the icecream sundae, too.

The Dragon's Tail

Chips

BY DAVID BROCK

WELL, chums, I have just got back from a spot of Family Camping, up the Island a bit. And since the Editor won't permit me to show you my snapshot album, which is the usual way of driving your friends nuts after a holiday (especially if the album is full of facetious titles for the pictures), I shall have to afflict you with some Notes on Camping.

Those can be pretty terrible, too. In their own way, other people's memories of camping are almost as bad as other people's dreams. And speaking of other people's dreams, I think I must have told you about Kirsopp Lake, my old professor of Bible History, explaining to the class just why it was that Joseph's brethren decided to sell him. He said no decent family could stand a brother who came down to breakfast with ANY dreams every morning. Let alone Joseph's type of dreams, which were calculated to infuriate the most modest and loyal brothers.

WE camped for several nights at the edge of a beach about nine miles north of Qualicum Beach, near the mouth of Big Qualicum River. Then we camped for several more nights at the edge of the big, new provincial park at Miracle Beach, just south of Oyster River and maybe fifteen miles north of Courtenay. The camping spots in the new park are large and numerous and very pleasant, but they are right in the woods and we wanted to be on the beach, so we camped on a privately-owned camping place at the edge of the park, and very nice too.

The list of things we forgot to bring is very impressive. So is the list of things we will bring next year, and the list of things we will leave home next year. But the list of things we did bring is pretty good too.

FOR one thing, we brought a really good chart, and you'd be surprised how many times a day we looked at it. On a couple of clear, damp evenings, when things looked bigger and closer and clearer, without the haze of fast weather, the chart proved us right in thinking we were looking at Mount Waddington, far to the north at the head of Knight Inlet. Waddington, as most people know by now, is the highest mountain entirely within B.C.; though Mount Fairweather is higher, it stands on the Alaska border.

The chart called "Vancouver Island and Adjacent Shores" published at Ottawa but obtainable locally, is an excellent one, and I am surprised that every park and resort on the seashore does not have one hanging up for the tourist to consult. In the last four summers I have seen only one place with a decent chart or map displayed. This was a small motel, mostly for fishermen, on Whidbey Island, across the line. Shame on us all.

WE remembered to bring Kephart's wonderful book on "Camping and Woodcraft", published by Macmillan and still in print, and one of the best gifts I know. And we brought a book on the stars, though we were usually too sleepy to consult it. In fact, one night a certain member of the party was so dozy that when he (or she) was asked to name the Heavenly Twins, she (or he) said "Sirius and Frivolous," and most of the others were too sluggish to get angry.

We brought some clothespins, by mistake, they were in a raincoat pocket, and they were the most useful objects in camp, for pinning dish towels and bathing suits and things to dry. We brought a pressure cooker, which seems a silly thing in camp but is twice as useful there as anywhere else. We brought some aureomycin ointment, and whether it was only our imaginations or not, we thought it healed infected barnacle cuts faster than anything else.

NEXT year, if we can borrow a trailer again, we hope to bring some rather unusual stuff for a camp. Umbrellas, for example, not for rain but for sunny beaches. A sawed-off rake, for keeping a semi-permanent campsite tidier. A tea-cosy (but yes, a tea-cosy). A whistle to round up the children now and then. . . . we saw one sensible family with a whistle, but only one. The rest just shrieked. Shrieked in vain, and then shrugged, and then swore. For convenience it is best to teach your kids a few letters of Morse Code and then invent some one-letter signals.

We shall bring cups that don't cool off too quickly, to go with the tea-cosy. Cheap stainless steel flatware. Our barometer that registers altitude. . . . this is often interesting to know. Clothes fit for early morning dew. Salt-water soap. Extra clothesline and cordline, for a hundred odd jobs. Other repair stuff. A book on insects (we left one at home).

AND, if we plan to stay a few days at one spot on a beach, or near one, we shall bring a froe. One of those things for splitting shakes. You don't find many planks on beaches, unless you don't need them. If you could split some nice cedar clapoards you could have a nice dry level floor for each tent. . . . across two logs, say well above high water. Naturally, you wouldn't bother with this for an overnight stay.

You will say all these ideas are fussy and just city slickerism. Perhaps. They would give me pleasure, though. And anyhow, I distrust these fellows who pretend to like discomfort. They are usually the same fellows who boast enormously about how they love Nature, but who really become miserable if the fishing is bad, or the shooting. . . . they are not interested in Nature at all if their happiness depends on fish. Also, they are too self-conscious. Also, they are usually the types who kick like mules if the coffee doesn't please them.

A Change in the Balance

BY JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP, From Washington

MORE and more, the soundness of the central idea of American world strategy is being challenged by events. This idea, which used to be called "deterrent power," and is now called "massive retaliation," has remained the same since the end of the last war. It is the idea that we can always rely—and rely almost exclusively—on our strategic air-power and our absolute weapons to hold the balance true between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Is this now a sound idea, or is it becoming a fraud? It was a sound idea in the past, certainly. As Sir Winston Churchill has repeatedly said, American air-atomic power "held the pass" in the years just after the war, when Soviet conventional forces were already very strong, and the West was almost inconceivably weak.

But that was the time of the American atomic monopoly. Long ago the monopoly was broken. Before long, the danger to the United States from the Soviet Strategic Air Army will be just as great as the danger to the Soviet Union from America's SAC. The results of this revolutionary change have also been forecast by Sir Winston Churchill. Six years ago, before either Korea or Indo-China, he made his prophecy:

"The question is asked," he said, "what will happen when (the Soviets) get the atomic bomb themselves? And then he answered his own question."

IN THE GREEN

"You can judge yourselves what will happen by what is happening now. If these things are done in the green wood, what will be done in the dry? If the Russians can continue month after month, disturbing and tormenting the world, trusting to our Christian inhibitions against using this strange new power against them, what will they do when they themselves have large quantities of atomic bombs?"

Sir Winston implied, although he did not specifically state, the most important feature of the new world situation that lies ahead.

In brief, the Kremlin has the initiative, and can rely on us to stay on the defensive, both globally and locally. We are committed not to use our air-atomic power except in "retaliation." We are committed further not to launch local aggressions like those in Korea and Indo-China. The Communist policy is not limited by any such commitments.

In practice, a direct and unprovoked Soviet attack on the United States will continue to be unlikely, so long as we constantly maintain the certain power of devastating retaliation. But if the history of the last eight years means anything at all, it means that what one may call indirect Soviet attacks are more and more likely every day. More and bigger Koreas and Indo-Chinas almost certainly must be expected.

To simplify the argument, let us suppose the area threatened is one that is admittedly essential to American security—say Japan or Western Germany. Suppose, further, that the threat develops three years from now, when the Soviet power to destroy the United States with absolute weapons will be unquestioned. There will then be three ways our policymakers can respond to the threat.

First, they can order the Strategic Air Command to attack the Soviet Union.

But if they do this, they will have to bear in mind that the Soviet can also "massively retaliate." In fact, they will have to risk the destruction of the U.S. to save Germany or Japan. Surely, it is more likely that they will say, "We cannot risk destruction of the United States for the sake of these Germans, or these Japanese."

Second, the policymakers can hope that Soviet and American air-atomic power will be sterilized, as gas was in the last war; and can order a local and limited response in the threatened area, on the pattern of the Korean war.

COURTING DEFEAT

But if they do this, they will court early defeat. The Communist half of the world now contains approximately 430 infantry divisions, against 17 American Army divisions, two and a half American Marine divisions, perhaps 30 other effective Western divisions in Europe, and not more than 40 other divisions on our side in the Far East. If the new weapons are ruled out, the Soviets can safely reinforce their attacks until they win the fight. Local and limited wars, against such overwhelming odds, are not practical policy.

Third, the policymakers can ignore the threat, and do nothing.

But if they do this, the industrial potential of Germany or Japan will be added to the Soviet sphere. After such a victory, Soviet rule will be rapidly and inevitably extended throughout Eurasia. The United States will be left isolated, cornered, and utterly overawed by the unchallengeable superior military-industrial power of the Kremlin.

And so you reach the logical dead end, which reveals that events have transformed the central idea of our strategy, which was once a sound idea, into a fraudulent and misleading idea.

That does not mean we need less Strategic Air Command. On the contrary, in order to maintain a reasonable margin of superiority, we almost certainly need more SAC. But this need for more SAC is only part of a much greater defense emergency, which simultaneously demands a much more vigorous defense program and a sustained effort to find a more valid world strategy.

IN PROMOTING THE OBJECTIVES

of the Colombo plan there are always more than two hundred trainees in Britain, at any one time, to acquire the "know-how" in many fields. They participate under the Technical Co-operation Scheme of the plan. In a recent contingent there were students from India, Pakistan, Burma, Indonesia, Ceylon and the Philippines.

The U.K. Information Office reports that some students are studying various aspects of railway administration, permanent way engineering, train lighting and air-conditioning equipment. Others specialize in store-keeping, hospital administration, and the National Savings movement.

Mr. Gurdas Singh, from India, whose subject is locust-control, took part in operations against a large-scale locust invasion in Kenya before going to England to study laboratory techniques.

New courses planned for the autumn include dairy and poultry husbandry, taxation, factory inspection, mechanical engineering, government accounting, and applied entomology.

Many students sit for British professional examinations while they are in the U.K. Four Ceylonese nurses, for example, obtained their British Tuberculosis Association certificates, and an Indian student gained a Fellowship of the Faculty of Anaesthetists.

These are examples of the highly valuable technical training that is a most constructive part of the Colombo plan; and it is gratifying to learn that an increased interest in the training courses is now being shown by non-Commonwealth, as well as by Commonwealth, countries.

Ontario and Quebec—And Taxes

I feel I must take exception to certain statements in your editorial of July 27 "Where Taxes Come From." You state "Out of its nationwide tax collection the national government pays subsidies to the poorer provinces in the interests of the nation as a whole. Mr. Duplessis objects to this method of redistributing wealth. Mr. Drew also objects." The last two sentences are utterly without foundation. I do not suppose you deliberately misrepresent the situation, but I do think you might read the statements of the gentlemen concerned more carefully to find out what they do mean. Such statements as yours have been repeated so often, particularly by the Winnipeg Free Press, that I don't doubt a large portion of the population believes them.

Mr. Drew and Mr. Duplessis do not object to the Dominion government collecting taxes from the nation in order to subsidize the poorer provinces. It is generally recognized in the central provinces that there is a good argument for such a redistribution of wealth. What Mr. Drew and Mr. Duplessis object to is the collection of taxes from any province by the Dominion government in order to pay a subsidy back to the same province. They prefer to collect and control their own taxes.

I might point out that Mr. MacDonald of Nova Scotia and Mr. Manning of Alberta, with some support from the then premier of British Columbia, were just as emphatic at one of the Dominion-Provincial conferences that it was a vicious principle for the Dominion government to collect taxes which it would hand back to the same provinces. They all felt it was more suitable for each province to have its own sources of revenue which would cover as far as possible its own expenses. If, after that, the poorer provinces still needed additional revenue, it was recognized that a subsidy from the national revenues was appropriate. Thus there is no implication in the Drew proposals of an increased total tax bill, as you suggest, but merely that any province which wishes to do so should have the right to collect its own taxes rather than receive the same or greater amount from the Dominion government. Surely there is nothing unreasonable in this. You should remember that the Quebec government and the Conservative proposal as stated by Mr. Drew each asked for federal income tax exemption only to an extent not more in actual cost than the Dominion government would be willing to grant to any province under the present type of Dominion-Provincial agreement.

I wonder if you realize how the fact that Ontario and Quebec abstained from tax agreements for so many years has benefitted the other provinces. Ontario and Quebec have been taxed to provide subsidies for the other provinces but the others have not been taxed to provide payments to Ontario and Quebec which the Dominion government was perfectly willing to give them out of the national revenues. If the central provinces had ever objected to tax agreements between the Dominion and the other provinces you might have something to argue about, but you ought to be delighted that they tax refunded for so long from dipping into the national revenue for their own benefit.

My main object in writing is in accord with the spirit of your final paragraph. You deprecate Mr. Duplessis' attitude because you fear it may drive the races of Canada apart. I deprecate your remarks because I feel they are likely to lessen the good feeling between central Canada and the rest of the country. As a visitor from Ontario I have nothing but good-will for British Columbia but I regret to see statements which misrepresent the attitude of my province and which are hardly likely to cause British Columbians to think well of Ontario and Quebec.

PRICE OF MONOTONY

There are many people, I suspect, who would be happier with a lower standard of living if they could get away from the day-in, day-out monotony of factory and office routine, if they could exchange their eight hours at the bench or the desk for twelve hours of varied occupation.

The Empty House

BY 1945, the empty, unpainted house on the Gulf Islands had weathered to a gentle, silver-grey. Bright moss grew upon its roof, the sagging porch was rotten, and the windows, boarded-up, were like dead, blind eyes.

But here and there, big white shells still edged the path that ran down the grassy slope to the still waters of the bay. And in early summer, a lilac still bloomed beneath the kitchen window.

Half a century ago, maybe, the house was built with care and courage. The orchard was planted then by settlers with a youthful faith in the future. A Gravenstein grew between them, and a King. Behind them, near the tumbling snafence, was a Bartlett pear, flanked by a Golden plum and a tree of small dark Damsons.

The trees were gnarled and neglected 10 years ago, but they still bore fruit, and each year care-free campers gathered in late summer and early fall.

Some of them wandered through the house, because a deserted dwelling draws the curious like a magnet.

Anything of value had long since been stolen. Even the window catches and the hinges of the doors were gone. One or two of the shabbier doors still leaned against the walls, but the better doors and most of the windows had been taken away by boat. But yellowed newspapers still lined the kitchen shelves.

Even then, it was hard to imagine the place was ever a home. Yet a battered enamel cup hung on a hook above where the pump used to be in the back kitchen, and a rusty dipper lay in a rusty pail.

Children must have lived there once, because in the woodshed was a little girl's sun-bonnet, and on the length of wire that must have served as a bad-weather drying line were the tattered remnants of a small boy's jeans.

Years ago, in the depression, a catalogue lay among the sawdust and the splinters by the chopping block. And tucked between its pages was a letter on coarse white paper from a cheap writing tablet, and scrawled in violent purple ink by a shaky, semi-educated hand.

"Dearest Jo," the letter said, "I'm sorry I cried when you came to the hospital, but I'd been so lonely in Vancouver, and frightened when the baby began to come. And when you didn't write and didn't come to visit me, I figured you were drinking again because of what I'd said. But now I know you weren't, so everything's okay. We'll start off fresh when I come home. You'll get a job somehow, and we'll make a happy home for Baby."

"Ever your loving wife, Mary."

The letter and the house were still there in 1945. But Mary and Joe were gone.

And now the house is gone, too. It burned down one summer evening. Careless campers, the people of the island think.

One field stone chimney stands, and the fruit trees are still there. But in a few more years they too will go.

The chimney will tumble and be just a mound of stones and rubble in the bush. The evergreens, salal and bracken will creep a little closer every year, until, at last, the fruit trees will be swallowed up.

And everywhere you find them, these lost, abandoned places that are sadder far than ghost towns were people failed or left to go.

For in the isolated dwellings, a single family tried and failed alone.

And I don't care what anybody says. Outside the limits of the cities, Canada is a beautiful land. It's one of the integral parts of our history. It's bound to color our music and art and literature.

City people who've never seen the hinterland just don't know the facts of Canadian life.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Doctors and Smoking

Dr. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

In the New England Journal of Medicine, for June 17, 1954, Dr. Leonid S. Sniegoff and Miss Olive M. Lombard reported a study they made of 4,104 questionnaires they got back from members of the Massachusetts Medical Society. One-sixth of these doctors reported that they had never smoked, and one-sixth said they had recently quit because of adverse publicity.

Another one-fifth have cut down on the amount of tobacco used. Only 0.7 per cent had changed from cigarettes to a pipe or cigar, and another 0.7 per cent were trying to make up their minds to quit; 3.3 per cent said they were now using filtered cigarettes.

Interesting is the fact that 55.5 per cent of the smokers said that they had accepted the idea that smoking accounts for cancer of the lung, and 62.9 per cent of those who never smoked had accepted the idea. Interestingly, the number of doubters was greater among the smokers.

Interesting, also, is the fact that only 1.9 per cent reported smoking more than two packages of cigarettes a day. Some 80 per cent had never smoked a cigar, and another 3.7 per cent only occasionally smoked a cigar. There were 3.6 per cent who smoked 29 or more cigars a week. Since one cigar is supposed to be equivalent to 10 cigarettes, this means pretty heavy cigar smoking.

Some 80 per cent of the physicians said they did not smoke a pipe; and 3.5 per cent smoked a pipe only occasionally. Only 0.2 per cent reported smoking more than 30 pipefuls a day.

Obviously, quite a few doctors have been impressed sufficiently by the evidence against cigarettes to cause them to mend their ways.

ECLIPSE BLINDNESS
It is to be hoped that, during the recent eclipse, no one watched the sun without looking through over-exposed photographic film or some specially smoked glass. During the eclipse of 1948, one eye clinic in California had 23 cases of eclipse blindness, with most of the victims children.

Obviously, to look at the sun is like using a burning glass on the most important point in the eye, which is the visual spot. It is that one spot which enables us to read and to see details. When this spot is destroyed by the sun's rays the person is likely to be in serious trouble. He cannot hope for a cure.

MARRIAGE FOR NEUROSES
Three highly intelligent, unmarried women in their thirties recently all complained that after going to see a physician because of feelings of fatigue and nervousness, the doctor had immediately told them that their cure was to be found in going out and getting married.

The women said they were rather disgusted with the advice, and their question now is, was the doctor justified in saying what he did? Is marriage, and especially a loveless marriage, a cure-all? Isn't there some other way in which a spinster can get rid of aches and pains?

With all due respect for the wisdom and good sense of some of my colleagues in medicine, I just cannot approve of the tendency some of them have to tell an unmarried woman patient to get out and find herself a man. The physician who gives this advice forgets that a sensible, able woman is not concerned so much with getting a sex life as with getting a fine, able, kind husband who will be a pleasant companion and a much-loved mate.

To a fine type of woman, sex without deep love may be only disgusting and humiliating. She wants to love the man to whom she gives herself; but if she loves him, she loves him usually for life, and then she wants marriage, a home and security.

As every woman of any wisdom knows, there is no sense in marrying without love or in marrying a man who is not fine and good and to be respected and looked up to. So often all a poor marriage brings a young woman is a baby whom she has to bring up and educate after the husband decamps and disappears. Often, it hardly pays a woman to marry a man who makes less than she does. That puts great strain on the marriage, actually there is much sense in a woman's giving up her liberty for practically nothing. She is likely to be much happier as her own boss.

TWINS WITH MULTIPLE SCLEROSIS
The Multiple Sclerosis Society at 270 Park Ave., New York, is anxious to get in touch with all the twins, both alike and not alike, one or both of whom has multiple sclerosis. By studying such twins the scientists can see if heredity has much to do with producing the disease.

Dr. Alvarez regrets he hasn't the time in which to read or answer requests for information.

DENTAL DECAY CUT 53.7% AFTER FLUORIDATION

CHICAGO (AP)—The Journal of the American Dental Association reported Saturday a nine-year program of adding fluorides to public drinking water in Brantford, Ont., had resulted in an overall reduction in dental decay of 53.7 per cent in the permanent teeth of children between five and 15 years old.

The study was based on dental records of 3,385 children who have been drinking fluoridated water and records of comparable age made before fluoridation began in Brantford in June, 1945.

Third Cross-Country Radar Fence Built

Russia's New Long-Range Jet Bombers Caused Canadian Action, Says U.S. Defense Official

of long-range jet bombers has prompted Canada to go ahead with a third cross-country radar chain to provide early warning of the approach of enemy marauders, assistant defense secretary John A. Hanna said Saturday.

Hanna, chairman of the U.S. section of the Canadian-U.S. defense board, described the "mid-Canada line," as it has been named, as the "best line that can be devised."

The new radar chain will be built entirely by Canada, Hanna said, because "what's done in Canada the Canadians want to do and there is no enthusiasm there for more U.S. troops."

In Ottawa, defense officials confirmed that the third early warning radar chain will be built across the mid-section of the country to warn of the approach of enemy bombers.

It was also learned that defense Minister Campney had planned to announce Canada's decision to build the line later this month.

The new line, as its name implies, will stretch across the wide mid-section of the country. Far to the north in the Arctic wastes is the "McGillivray" line, which installations now are being prepared. South of this is the "Pine tree line," which runs generally along the 54th parallel from British Columbia in the west to Labrador in the east. This line was built partly by Canada and partly by the United States. U.S. troops actually man some of its posts along its northeastern stretches.

Hanna, who left the defense department Saturday as assistant defense secretary, will retain his membership on the Canadian-U.S. defense board.

He spoke at a press conference.

New Dean Appointed
WINNIPEG (AP)—Appointment of Rev. J. Burton Thomas as dean of Rupert's Land was announced Sunday by Archbishop Walter F. Earfoot.

Mr. Thomas, rector of St. Matthew's Anglican church, Winnipeg, will succeed Very Rev. J. O. Anderson, who last March became dean of Ottawa.

This sent the scribes on a hunt for the late George Bernard Shaw's pronouncement on the split infinitive, and on a holiday week-end, with the libraries closed and Shaw students absent on holidays, it was quite a job.

However, it was learned that Shaw, smarting under a critical editorial, wrote a letter to the editor scolding any restriction on the use of the split infinitive if using it permitted a smooth and facile expression.

Mr. Nelson and his associates sent a telegram to Earl Alexander, an honorary member, calling attention to his expression "to officially open the British Empire Games," and asking for an explanation.

Tornado Wreaks 100-Yard-Strip Havoc in Galt
GALT, Ont. (BUP)—Trouble-shooters worked today repairing damage caused by a tornado that cut a 100-yard swath across this city in less than five minutes.

Trees were snapped and brought down most power lines in the storm's path. Television aerials were twisted and chimneys were blown off a dozen houses.

The tornado preceded a violent electrical storm early Saturday night. Residents said it came from the west and resembled a smoke cloud.

On the east side of the city, the framework of a house was moved 10 feet off its foundation.

Legion Hears Crerar Advocate Universal Service in Reserve

TORONTO (CP)—Universal military training and service to strengthen Canada's reserve forces was urged Sunday night by Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, Second World War commander of the Canadian army overseas.

The policy of the government and Parliament against peacetime conscription "is just as mistaken as it can be," he said at the opening ceremonies of the Canadian Legion biennial convention.

"With the probability of war in a horrible form coming to the civilian men, women and children of Canada, there are no remaining grounds, not even emotional, for objecting to the adoption of an effective system of universal military training and service."

Gen. Crerar, grand president of the legion, recalled that in 1951 he proposed compulsory military training of six months followed by several years' compulsory service in the reserve forces.

He said he still thinks that, short of all-out war, service in the active force should remain on a voluntary basis.

"NOT PREPARED"
Canadians are not prepared to meet the "increasingly threatening crisis" in world affairs.

While Canada should prepare for all-out war, the "world struggle would more likely take the form of small wars like Korea and Indo-China."

"The democracies cannot go on indefinitely allowing these small wars to result in practical victories for the Communist powers. Eventually, we shall have to fight one, or several, to a successful finish, if we are not going to be nibbled to death."

Gen. Crerar said he understands that in an all-out war, only one of Canada's two brigades overseas could be brought up to division strength in two or three months.

"There is no pool of trained reinforcements standing behind that regular, or active, division, nor could there be for the best part of a year after it was decided to create them."

NO WALKOUT
The threat of a walkout by British Columbia delegates when Veterans Affairs Minister Lapointe addresses the Canadian Legion convention today has been smoothed over.

It was learned Sunday night that the B.C. delegates will stay and hear what he has to say about veterans' allowances.

The B.C. legion executive two months ago decided to boycott Mr. Lapointe in protest over the federal government's refusal to grant legion requests for improvements in the allowances paid to needy veterans.

At that time, secretary Duncan MacLennan said his provincial committee would not accept the government's "callous attitude towards the needs of veterans."

Legion president Dr. C. B. Lumsden, speaking at the convention's opening ceremonies Sunday night, mentioned that Mr. Lapointe spent two hours during the day in caucus with the B.C. delegation.

It was learned elsewhere that the delegation decided not to walk out in view of the fact Mr. Lapointe will remain after his speech for a question-and-answer session with delegates.

QUEBEC CHAMP

MALAN WANTS ANTI-RED LINE DRAWN ABOUT S.A.

PRETORIA (Reuters)—South African Premier Daniel Malan believes the West should consider formation of an anti-Communist pact "in and around the western Indian Ocean."

In a press conference Sunday night he also said that the defense coverage provided by the Atlantic Pact for the Middle East should be extended to include South Africa.

Malan's proposed West Indian Ocean pact presumably would be spearheaded by South Africa and the British and French possessions of East Africa, supported by their "mother countries."

The prime minister made his suggestions after launching an attack on the policy of Indian Prime Minister Nehru, whom he accused of working to drive the white man from Africa.

Russia Aims to Conquer Without War, Says Alexander

VANCOUVER (CP)—Russia and her satellites are seeking as vigorously as ever to conquer the world, Britain's defense minister, Earl Alexander, said here.

"But no one in my view will deliberately start an all-out war, except as a last resort," he told the Vancouver branch of the English-Speaking Union at a dinner Saturday night.

Guests included three Canadian cabinet ministers—External Affairs Minister Lester B. Pearson, Defense Minister Ralph Campney and Fisheries Minister James Sinclair.

Other highlights of Lord Alexander's address were: 1. The cold war can be expected to continue indefinitely with risk of Communist-inspired "trouble" in various parts of the world.

'Worst Single Car Accident' Kills 11 Kentucky People

WHITESBURG, Ky., (AP)—Mrs. Lula Brown, 37; her husband, Tom, 41, the driver and owner of the car; their four children; and Martha Gibson, 17, who lived with the Browns, State police quoted Maxie as saying the auto became overheated by the long pull up the steep grade and Brown attempted to stop shortly after passing the crest of the mountain.

Maxie said the brakes failed and Brown drove into a ditch to keep from careening down the long slope. The auto struck a cliff, jamming the right door, then skidded around and overturned on its left side.

Maxie said the gasoline tank burst into flames as he escaped but that he grabbed an axe lying nearby and tried to hack an opening for the others until the heat drove him away. Despite flames which had burned away his clothing, Maxie was again attempting to free the others when help arrived.

Okanagan Cherry Crop Heavier Than Forecast

KELOWNA (CP)—The Okanagan Valley's 1954 cherry crop has been much heavier than anticipated, despite heavy rains during the height of the picking season.

A provincial agriculture department report issued Saturday said late spring frosts nipped the tender blossoms of cherries and other soft fruits, reducing what would have been a comparatively heavy crop.

Stolen B.E.G. Safe Found; Money Missing

Pakistan Athletes Heaviest Losers

VANCOUVER (CP) — Some of the passport stolen from British Empire Games athletes have been recovered by police.

They were found Saturday in the wreckage of a smashed safe which Friday night was trucked from the commandant's office at Empire Village.

The robbery occurred while the athletes and officials were 10 miles away at Empire Stadium for the opening of the games.

Pakistan team members were the heaviest losers. They lost $1,505 in cash, deposited in the commandant's office for safe-keeping.

Southern Rhodesian team members lost £200 in travellers' cheques, negotiable only in the sterling area, and South Africans reported loss of £30 sterling, and travellers' cheques.

The safe was found three blocks from the village. It had been battered with an ax and the door knocked from its hinges.

PAKISTANIS WEEP
Pakistan athletes wept when they learned of their loss. Anger was the reaction of other teams' members.

Personal papers, a store of meal tickets, and office records were left untouched.

The 50-member South African team lost all their passports, as did members of the Southern Rhodesian squad, and the Bahamians.

It is believed all were recovered in the battered safe, but a police spokesman said: "It may be some time before exact contents of the safe are known as apparently there was no list kept."

Ottawa Youths Leap From 100-Ft. Bridge

OTTAWA (CP) — Youthful daredevils in Canada's capital have a new fad—jumping into the Ottawa River from the Interprovincial bridge linking the city with Hull, Que.

The latest leap was made Saturday by 19-year-old Rheel Poulin from a point on the bridge structure about 125 feet above the water. He told police he made the jump because his 100-foot leap two weeks ago from the bridge guard rail was matched last Saturday by LAC Donald Lascelle, 18-year-old member of the RCAF material command here.

Waitresses Relieve U.S. Airmen of KP
VANCE AIR FORCE BASE, Okla. (UP) — Smiling waitresses, instead of hapless airmen of K.P., served the chow here today and the soldiers said the food just naturally tasted better.

The women in crisp blue and white uniforms were employees of a Chicago catering firm which has taken over all mess-hall duties as part of an air force experiment—a trial that carries the fervent good wishes of airmen here. If the idea works out, it may be adopted at all stateside bases.

Queen Leading Racing Owner With $100,240

LONDON (AP) — Queen is making her race horses pay— to the tune of £35,800 ($100,240) since March 22.

She is England's leading owner in prize money. The season ends in November but experts already are talking about a royal winner for the campaign.

She would get a big kick out of seeing her name at the top of the owners' list, for to her horse racing is no arm-chair hobby. Horse-folk say: she knows the business inside out.

She delights in a day at the races, is a critical visitor to her training stables and always takes a trip to the paddock to run an expert eye over her thoroughbreds before they go down to the starting post.

She has a string of 24 thoroughbreds — the biggest since the days of her great-grandfather, King Edward VII. They've been chosen expertly by trainer Boyd-Rochford and the Queen.

The Queen's racetrack earnings are a royal record. Previous best was that of King Edward VII in 1900, who as Prince of Wales topped the owners' list with £25,585.

In 1942 King George VI, the Queen's father, led the owners with £10,535.

JOE OUTWARDLY CONFIDENT

McCarthy Critics Try to Avert Defeat

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate critics of Senator Joseph McCarthy marshalled their forces today in the hope of heading off an outright defeat of their drive to censure the Wisconsin Republican.

McCarthy, outwardly confident of victory, fought with help from some 100 Republicans to force an early showdown on a censure motion offered by Senator Ralph Flanders, Rep.-Vt.

The Senate planned to resume debate today.

Flanders himself was barred by a parliamentary maneuver of Republican leader William Knowland, Calif., from any voluntary expansion of his brief resolution bearing only an allegation that McCarthy's conduct has tended to "bring the Senate into disrepute."

Knowland won a Senate order Saturday for roll-call vote on the Flanders proposal. Senate parliamentarians said that meant the original could be amended only by unanimous consent or by a majority vote of the Senate. Senator Everett

With 7,000 miles of rapid travel behind him, His Royal Highness, Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, stepped from an RCAF aircraft at Patricia Bay Sunday, to be welcomed for the second time to Vancouver Island, but for the first time as the husband of the

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

Once upon a time (8.33 p.m., Eastern Daylight Saving Time, if you wish to be precise) a Very Young Gentleman from Brooklyn, N.Y., was a contestant on a Radio Quiz Show.

Upon being asked Where He Was From, he said Brooklyn, the Audience collapsed in Gales of Laughter, and he was awarded the Grand Prize for answering The Question.

As it turned out, the Grand Prize was an All Expenses Vacation Trip for two to Anywhere in North America.

Upon being asked whom he would take with him on this All Expense Vacation trip, the Very Young Gentleman from Brooklyn, N.Y., replied, "Me brudder, I guess."

So it was arranged that he and his brother visit a Travel Agency to choose Where on this Wonderful Continent they would go.

And in this Travel Agency the Very Young Gentleman from Brooklyn, N.Y., noticed a travel folder issued by the Tourist and Publicity Bureau of the City of Victoria.

Noticing the Grey and White Powl with Widespread Wings on the cover of the folder he said to his brother: "What's dat boid?"

"That isn't a boid," his brother, a Well-Educated Man, pointed out. "That's a seagull."

"Well, dat's where I want to go," said the Very Young Gentleman from Brooklyn, N.Y., and the trip to The Garden City was arranged forthwith.

Due to the Miracles of Modern Transportation, it was not long before the Very Young Gentleman from Brooklyn, N.Y., and his Well-Educated Brother, arrived in Victoria.

Eagerly, the Very Young Gentleman sniffed at the sea air, asked why the Hanging Baskets were being hung, and demanded to know which Tally-Ho Horse belonged to the Lone Ranger.

His Well-Educated Brother answered these questions skillfully, and then steered the Very Young Gentleman toward Beacon Hill Park.

As they approached The Park, the Very Young Gentleman noticed a Large Black Crow flying overhead.

"Cheese," he remarked to his brother, "is that one of them seagulls?"

"No, no," said his Well-Educated Brother. "That isn't a gull, that's a boid."

"You mean," said the Very Young Gentleman from Brooklyn, N.Y., "There's a difference between gulls and boids?"

"Of course there's a difference between gulls and boids," "So now you tell me," said the Very Young Gentleman from Brooklyn, N.Y., "Why didn't you tell me before we left home?"

"What difference would that make?"

"So if I'd known there was a difference between gulls and boids, would I have brought me brudder on this trip?"

$10,000 FIRE IN OAK BAY STORE-SUITE

Faulty Wiring Blamed for Blaze

Close to $10,000 damage resulted when fire burned through a store and living quarters at Henry's Grocery and Meat Market, 2007 Oak Bay Avenue, Saturday afternoon.

It was the first major fire in an Oak Bay business area in 16 years, according to Municipal Fire Chief Ed Claydars.

About 16 firemen from the Oak Bay hall were assisted by two trucks from the Victoria department, led by city chief, Frank Briers. Citizens also assisted with ladders and hose.

Included in the volunteers were Oak Bay Reeve, Fred Norris.

The blaze, which was reportedly due to faulty wiring, started in the roof of the 50-year-old building. Firemen were hindered because of the weak condition of the roof and because the attic was sealed off in sections.

Flames ate through the roof and did about $5,000 damage to the living quarters above the store. Proprietor S. J. Henry, who lives in the damaged apartment was in hospital at the time of the fire.

Damage in the store was mostly to stock and may run to several thousand dollars. It was partly insured.

He had just returned from Penicton, where he was installed at the national convention of Elks last Wednesday.

About 150 Elks from the Island and other parts of Canada attended the reception.

Saanich Clr. Wootten to Quit For Municipal Post

CLR. WOOTTEN

Councillor Roy H. Wootten will resign his seat from Saanich Council this month, it was learned from a reliable source today.

It is understood Mr. Wootten has applied for a job with the municipality.

Mr. Wootten, who was first elected to the council in 1951, would not comment on the report, but indicated that he would have an announcement to make at a meeting of the municipal council next Monday.

Mr. Wootten is an active trade unionist and is vice-president of the National Federation of Public Employees under the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada. He was the chief negotiator for city outside employees in their wage dispute and strike with the city council in June.

A resident of Saanich for 25 years, Mr. Wootten served for several years with the Saanich fire department with the rank of lieutenant. He also has been active in Saanich Employees' Association and was vice-president of the International Firefighters' Association of Greater Victoria.

The resignation of Clr. Wootten will necessitate a by-election, probably at the December municipal elections. He was elected last year for a two-year term.

No Fanfare for Air-Weary Duke

Crowds Cheer HRH Here on 'Stag Visit'

By TOM GOULD

The travel-weary Duke of Edinburgh stepped down from his silver and red RCAF C-5 at Patricia Bay Airport Sunday evening and walked into the kind of welcome he asked for.

The Duke's plane landed at 6.07, and within a few minutes he had shaken hands of several dignitaries, climbed into a waiting limousine, and was whisked off to Government House.

A crowd of about 1,500 was on hand at the airport, and just as the Duke had asked on his three-week Canadian "stag party with a sincere purpose" there was no fuss or formality.

The hand-waving Duke even dressed the part. Instead of gold braid he wore a conservative grey business suit, and his bare head revealed his slightly receding hairline.

He was obviously tired after a four-and-three-quarter-hour flight from Rivers, Manitoba, a flight he spent reading a book in the plane's rear compartment, specially fitted for Prime Minister St. Laurent's world tour, or gazing at the splendor of the Rocky Mountains from the cockpit.

The planes, from clubs all across Canada, brought 45 members, who were entertained at Patricia Bay by members of the Victoria Flying Club.

Planes arrived at noon, and left following arrival of the Duke of Edinburgh.

Leading the flight was Ross Scream of Winnipeg, association president, and among those present was winner of the Webster Trophy, Bob Purves of Winnipeg, and runner-up Douglas Nassey of Vancouver. Present also was the association secretary, George Hurren of Ottawa.

There are about 40 flying clubs in the association across Canada.

The group dispersed on arrival back in Vancouver.

SPORADIC CHEERS

At the airport there were a few sporadic cheers as he stepped from the C-5's blue-lined interior to the gangway. Most of the spectators waved their hands and looked in silence.

Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace met the Duke, shook his hand, and presented Premier W. A. C. Bennett, Rear Admiral J. C. Hibbard, Assistant Commissioner C. Rivett-Carnac, Victoria's mayor, the reeves and acting reeves of Saanich, Esquimalt, Central Saanich and Oak Bay, Saanich Chief Constable J. Bull, and City Chief Constable John Blackstock.

The Lieutenant-Governor and the Duke then climbed into a shining blue open car, with the Duke's standard mounted on the fender, and left for Government House.

Photographers, TV cameramen, newsreel cameramen, and reporters were pushed aside by the Duke's aides during the welcome. Officials said later it was his desire to be comparatively free to see the country, and not to have flashbulbs popping in his face wherever he appeared.

An RCMP driver led the Royal cavalcade down the Patricia Bay highway at a steady 37 miles an hour, with an escort of city police motorcycles flanking the car carrying the duke.

Hundreds of bathers and picnickers at Elk Lake left their swimming momentarily as his car passed, and then turned back to the inviting waters.

A handful of watchers were posted along his route in the downtown area and about 500 crowded around the Government House gates.

There were no bands, no guard of honor, no medals, and not even a little girl to curtsy and present the usual bouquet of flowers.

Q.—How does the word "summons" get into B.C. newspapers? I can't find it in Montreal, New York or London papers.—A.B.

A.—This column is unable to speak for the papers you mention, but for the Times it may say that to trace the use of summons as a verb is to dip back into its history. Members of the editorial staff of longest standing cannot remember a time when this newspaper did not so use the word. A search of the files would be necessary to make plain if this use dates back to the birth of the Times in 1884. As to its correctness it may be pointed out that Fowler's Dictionary of Modern English Usage recognizes summons as a verb when it means the serving of a legal paper which requires a person to attend in a court, adding that the word summons is equally good. Both Webster's New International Dictionary and the New Standard Dictionary (Funk and Wagnalls) recognize summons as a transitive verb used colloquially.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along in The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily. All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

This Powdered Skim Milk Dissolves in an Instant!

BY PENNY SAVER

Pour . . . stir . . . serve! That's all you have to do with the new pasteurized, powdered skim milk, which is low in calories and high in protein.

There is no need to make a paste of this product before mixing with water. All you need do is put the powder in the water and it will dissolve instantly. If you use it in tea or coffee, just drop a spoonful of powder in the cup and the beverage is immediately ready to drink.

This powdered milk, from which only water and fat have been removed, even whips up like cream. It is a good dietary source of vitamin B complex and contains all the calcium and other valuable minerals and protein normally found in whole milk.

Instant milk powder requires no refrigeration. Just store on the kitchen shelf as you do flour, sugar and salt.

Use this powder for a delicious whipped topping for desserts. Four one-half cup ice water into a chilled bowl and add one-half cup of milk powder. Beat with rotary beater or electric mixer until mixture begins to whip. Then add one tablespoon of lemon or grapefruit juice, two tablespoons sugar and one-quarter teaspoon vanilla. Whip until stiff. (Slurp!)

A one-pound box of this new powdered milk, which contains enough powder to make four quarts of liquid milk, costs 35 cents in Victoria.

This Prayer Presents Tenets of Vibrant Life

One Sunday a few years ago I heard such a beautiful and wise prayer at church that I asked the minister for a copy of it. Today I would like to pass it on to you. It presents what I understand to be the tenets of vibrant living in a powerful and lovely way.

"We thank Thee for the willing hands, and numerous and generous hearts who here do their work in full measure, pressed down and running over, who work not by the clock nor by the yardstick; not by the mere letter of the law, but who work because their love vitalizes them.

"Save us from using our offices and station as a means for our prestige. Forgive us the stupidity that is deaf to the new and the different, not because they are bad, as we profess, but because we do not understand them and they therefore make us uncomfortable.

"Forgive us, O God, that we are so easily tempted to lord it over others. Bridle our tongues lest we open our mouths only to reveal an empty head, an ugly spirit, or a heart of spite which knoweth not Thee. Suffer us never to forget that the contentious and conceited spirit is the possession of little women and petty men.

"Save us from the folly that looks in its mirror and repeats daily without a qualm, the mistakes of every yesterday. Save us from obstinate refusal to learn our lessons; save us, lest while we profess to be noble, we stand in the light of someone else.

"Bestow on us, O God, a lovely sense of humor, lest taking ourselves too seriously, we shall be unable to see how ridiculous we appear to Heaven and to Earth, with our haughty looks and stiff necks! Let not the spirit which magnifies or delights in the failures of others, that uses the dagger of slander or the rapier of idle and malicious words, be so much as known among us.

"May the potentialities for good which Thou has planted in us, by Thy power, prosper. Help us to promote and protect them. May our words and lives: in love and joy, in peace and goodness, in gentleness and patience, loyalty and faith, beautify life about us, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen."

Girls Shun Fat Boy As Dancing Partner

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, PhD

A fat person may find it harder and certainly more tiring to dance than a slender one does. However, that is no excuse for shunning dances. A young boy writes:

(Q)—"I have just finished my junior year in high school and am faced with quite a serious problem. As you know, the senior year at high school is the time when there are lots of dances and parties with the girls. I like girls and parties but I am what you might call a 'male wallflower.' The girls don't want to dance with me. My trouble is that I am overweight. When I dance, I puff and get so hot my clothes get wet with perspiration. I don't know whether the girls can smell the perspiration or not but I am very self-conscious about it. I know how to dance as well as most of the fellows, but who wants to dance with a fat boy when she can dance with a thin one?"

(A)—"If I were a young girl, I wouldn't dance with a fat boy if I could dance with a thin one. I believe most girls feel that way. Furthermore, it really isn't very much fun for a girl to dance with a boy who puffs away as if he were pushing around a heavy weight, and it certainly isn't pleasant or romantic to smell perspiration on one's partner.

Not the least objection to dancing with a fat boy is the fact that the rest of the girls would think a girl was pretty hard up if that was the best she could do. Any girl likes to be seen with an attractive partner, and no fat boy can be classed as such.

You have most of the summer ahead of you. Why not use it to get reasonably thin? Then when you go back to school in the fall continue to diet until you are down to the weight you should be for your height.

Make an appointment today to see your doctor. Ask him to prescribe a reducing diet. You are still growing, internally more than externally, so you must not take chances on ruining your health. Stick to the diet your doctor prescribes, no matter how much you may be tempted to break it.

Bride Wears Gown Of Satin, Lace At First United

A full, sweeping gown of white bridal satin paneled with lace was worn Saturday evening by lovely bride Betty Mae Bowcott, when she spoke the vows which made her Mrs. John Blain. The fitted bodice of the gown had a Peter Pan collar and the skirt was cut with semitrain. A coronet sparkling with brilliants and seed pearls held her veil of tulle net which misted to full length. She wore pearl earrings and carried a cascade bouquet of red roses, white sweet-peas and stephanotis.

Rev. Moir A. J. Waters performed the ceremony in a setting of gladioli in First United Church, uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Bowcott, 2500 Queens Street, and the son of Mrs. J. Blain, Cheshire, Eng., and the late Mr. Blain. Organist was Mr. Malcolm Hamilton, and Mrs. W. G. Hill sang "Through the Years."

A color scheme of mauve and yellow was carried out in the bridal attendants' gowns and flowers. Mrs. S. Christian, matron of honor for her sister, was gowned in yellow net over taffeta with net jacket and cascade bouquet of mauve gladioli. Bridesmaids Miss Wilma McGill, cousin of the bride, and Miss Ann Hanbury were tiered gowns of mauve net over taffeta, net jackets, and bandeaux of mauve feathers. Their cascade bouquets were of yellow gladioli.

The little flower girl, Miss Carol Nielsen, was dressed in yellow nylon with bandeau of yellow flowers and carried a basket of mauve sweet peas and yellow marguerites.

UNCLE GIVES TOAST

Lougheed's Banquet Hall was the scene of the reception, at which Mr. A. Thomson, uncle of the bride, proposed the toast. The bride's mother wore a dusty rose two-piece dress with white accessories, and the groom's cousin, Mrs. H. Braden, wore a navy ensemble and white accessories to receive guests.

After a honeymoon on the mainland, the newlyweds will reside in Vancouver. The bride traveled in a light blue suit with matching coat, navy blue accessories, and an orchid corsage.

Spicy Meat Balls Enliven Your Patio Parties, Picnics

Spicy meat balls are a suitable dish for a backyard or patio party.

When used with intelligence and discretion, pungent spices can do wonders to meat. From Mrs. Lester W. Jones of Baltimore, Md., we get this spicy meat ball recipe, ideal for picnics, or made smaller, perfect as hors d'oeuvres.

Spicy Meat Balls (Baltimore) Two pounds chuck or round ground beef, 4 eggs, 2 cups day-old bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons minced onion, 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper, 1 teaspoon prepared horseradish, ½ teaspoon ground nutmeg, ¼ teaspoon ground cayenne pepper, 8 slices medium-sized onion, 9 medium-sized mushroom caps, grated sharp Cheddar or Parmesan cheese.

Combine first 9 ingredients. Shape into 2-inch balls. Place, alternately, on long skewers with a slice of onion and a mushroom cap, using 5 meat balls to each skewer. Broil on all sides over charcoal grill until brown. Cooking time will depend upon the heat of the charcoal fire, usually about 20 minutes. Or if desired, place under the kitchen range broiler 10 to 15 minutes. Sprinkle with grated cheese before serving. (Yield: 20 balls.)

For Cocktail Balls: Make ¼ the above recipe, omitting onions and mushrooms. Shape into ¾-inch balls. Saute in hot cooking oil until golden brown on all sides. Serve on toothpicks and dunk in grated cheese. (Yield: 30 small balls.)

New Horizons for Delegates As BPW Convention Finishes

TORONTO (CP)—Delegates to the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs convention reached conclusion of their program at the weekend and left for home with some thoughts on new horizons for women.

The thoughts were planted at a dinner by Dr. Lillian Gilbreth, famed U.S. methods engineer who returned last spring from a tour of the Philippines, Formosa, India, Australia, England and Brazil.

"I have never seen so much co-operation and team work as I witnessed among Western and Eastern women in Asia," said the 76-year-old woman who pioneered study methods in the U.S.

At last, Western women have approached the East with humility—"they have come to learn as well as teach."

This new-found humility might well be used at home she said to open new doors and solve new problems. She attacked the American attitude of a "Ph.D. qualification for nearly every job," saying that what women needed now were "educated hearts and hands as well as educated minds."

Delegates Friday raised the cry "discrimination" against a regulation in the Unemployment Insurance Act affecting payment claims to newly-married women.

The regulation, Section 5A of the act, is directed at women married two years or less. If such a woman ceases employment after marriage she will not get unemployment benefits unless she is widowed, deserted, separated or has a husband incapable of work—no matter how many years she has paid into the fund.

The federation will petition the federal government to have SA rescinded.

Attractive Wedding at Country Church Unites Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Valcourt

A lovely country wedding was solemnized Saturday morning in St. Richard's Church, Langford, when Father W. J. O'Brien united in marriage Rosita Lucille Toutant, Glen Lake, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philmin Toutant, New Westminster, and Napoleon (Nat) Albert Valcourt, fourth son of Mr. and Mrs. David Valcourt, Glen Lake.

Summer blooms decorated the church and roses adorned the altar. Wedding music was played on the organ by Mrs. A. Olsen and Mrs. Philias Valcourt sang French hymns.

Given in marriage by her father, the pretty brunette bride made a charming portrait in her gown of white net fashioned with fitted bodice and bolero above a bouffant skirt. Her fine net veil billowed into a train which was carried by little Joanne Valcourt, dressed in a yellow-net frock. The bride carried an arm bouquet of roses. Miss Noelle Toutant was her sister's bridesmaid and was gowned in pink net, her head-dress being a coronet of matching net and her corsage bouquet carnations and clover blossoms. Lucien Therberge, dressed in a grey suit, was page boy. Mr. Eugene Valcourt supported his brother as best man and Mr. Eugene Dion was usher.

Immediately following the service, a wedding breakfast was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Valcourt, Spoke Road. Lovely garden flowers were used to decorate the table, and it was centred with a three-tier wedding cake. Mr. David Valcourt proposed the toast to the bride.

In the evening a reception was held for about 200 guests at Colwood Hall. Assisting in receiving were Mrs. Toutant and Mrs. Valcourt, mothers of the newly wed couple. For a honeymoon trip to Tacoma, the bride chose a navy blue suit with white accessories. Upon return, Mr. and Mrs. Valcourt will make their home at Glen Lake.

Among out-of-town guests at the wedding and reception were the bride's aunt, Mrs. M. Johnson of New Westminster, and her cousin, Miss Ann Johnson.

MANY WOMEN GREET DUKE

The excited crowd that met the Duke of Edinburgh at Patricia Bay Airport, Sunday, was comprised mostly of women. When His Royal Highness stepped from the airplane it was, for the most part, a feminine cheer that greeted him. He was dressed casually in a smart, single-breasted grey suit and black and red striped tie, and his bronze complexion and fair hair told of his love for the outdoors. Those who gathered at the airport long before the silver airliner appeared at 6.15, kept cool by drinking lemonade and eating ice cream which was being sold by small boys. An outside stall sold souvenir postcards of the royal family. The Duke was smiling and relaxed and spoke only a few words to the dignitaries who greeted him officially. The crowd cheered again as he passed through the gates in his shiny blue convertible, and he waved obligingly.

Return From Stratford

Mrs. A. H. F. Stelek, 1214 Old Esquimalt Road, and her daughter, Mrs. F. Vincent Rush, 1221 Old Esquimalt Road, returned home Saturday from Stratford, Ont., after attending performances of the Canadian Shakespearean Festival. Mrs. Stelek and Mrs. Rush traveled by plane and while in the east, visited relatives and friends in Toronto and St. Catharines.

LADIES OR NOT . . .

Dunking Discipline for Mayors Declares Tradition-Wise Woman

OTTAWA (BUP)—One courageous local lady has suggested that tradition-loving Mayor

Charlotte Whitton should be dunked three times in a vat of cold water once a year by the taxpayers.

Alice E. Richardson proffered the suggestion via the letters-to-the-editor column of The Ottawa Citizen. The letter noted that the dunking routine was a revered tradition in many countries overseas.

What prompted the letter, it was learned, was a recent report that Mayor Whitton—a stickler for tradition—might call out the city police and have them throw robes and gold chains of office to Ottawa troops marching on Ottawa streets with fixed bayonets without city permission.

It was an ancient and honorable tradition, according to Mayor Whitton, that any unit flying its regimental colors and bearing arms must get municipal sanction before parading through the streets.

City Hall sources said the mayor came close to exercising her powers when the Governor-General's Foot Guards marched along city streets to and from Parliament Hill for the "Trooping the Color" ceremony on Dominion Day. The need didn't arise, however, because the play-it-safe guards furlled their colors and carried their bayonets in scabbards.

The letter writer said that she was "delighted to find that a mayor is not only factually correct in her remonstrances, but that she still believes in the part which tradition should play in all our everyday affairs."

"The past is our common heritage," the lady correspondent went on, "and if Canadian culture is to remain a living thing, it must be tempered with just such a love of tradition."

Then she cited the "fascinating custom" of a yearly ducking for mayors. It, too, was an historic tradition. It was "still practiced in many parts of the Old Country."

Each year, on a day set aside for the purpose, the mayor, with robes turned inside out and wrists shackled by the chain of office, is mounted on a cart.

The mayor, to the accompaniment of music and general merriment, is then conveyed into all parts of the town; where he (or she) is greeted with grave salutations . . . and dipped thrice into a vat of cold water. This, according to tradition, gives the mayor cause to remember that whatever his (or her) temporary dignity, he (or she) is still in all ways the servant of the townfolk.

Langford Girl Bride of F. L. Payne In St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church

Rev. T. H. McAllister was officiating clergyman at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Saturday night, when Lorraine Marie Rantz and Francis Laverne Payne were united in marriage. The bride is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Rantz, Langford, and her groom, son of Mrs. Josephine Payne, 845 Balmoral Road. Baskets of gladioli and summer lilac decorated the church and pews were marked with colonial bouquets. Mrs. Sheila Hope sang "I Love You Truly" during signing of the register.

Walking up the aisle on the arm of her father, the bride was a charming picture in her traditional white gown of lace and nylon net. The bodice had a standing ruffled collar and lily point sleeves, the skirt being slightly en-train. A pearl embroidered veil of illusion net bordered with delicate lace and she wore a pearl necklace and earrings, gifts of the groom. She carried a white Bible, a gift from her maternal grandmother, Mrs. E. McLean of Swift Current, Sask. It was adorned with blossoms of white gladioli and centred with a red rose.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Gloria Ledger, sister of the groom, wearing a blue lace and white head-dress of blue net. Maid of honor, Miss Dolores Waddell, wore pink lace and net and a pink satin tiara embroidered with seed pearls. Miss Marilyn Lantz, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid in green lace and net with matching pearl embroidered tiara. Little flower girl, Pauline Lebarge, was frocked in white Swiss dotted sheer over yellow taffeta with wide yellow sash and a band of white flowers in her hair. All attendants carried fan-shaped bouquets of carnations in the same colors as their dresses.

Mr. Clifton James Payne was his brother's best man and usher were Mr. Larry Rantz, brother of the bride, and Mr. George French.

Assisting the young couple in receiving at a reception at the Golden Slipper were Mrs. Rantz, wearing a teal blue lace and crepe dress with white accessories and cerise rose corsage, and Mrs. Payne in a light blue suit with white and pink accessories and corsage of pink and white carnations.

The bridal party stood beneath an archway of dogwood flowers, and midsummer flowers were used on the tables. A three-tier wedding cake was cut, and toast to the bride proposed by Mr. Wilfred French. Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Payne of Honeymoon Bay and Mrs. S. Dyer and Miss Jean Benton of Vancouver. Langford.

Hobbies Relieve Fatigue, Give General Satisfaction

Winnie Borne Sherman: "A hobby can be just the thing to help a housewife through trying times."

NEW YORK (NEA)—A hobby University, and in the early days of my marriage, I taught what we're headed toward. For art to supplement my husband's income.

"But any woman can realize a similar satisfaction. She can try gardening or needlepoint, book-binding, weaving—a anything that is creative."

The past several years have been relatively peaceful for the Sherman's. Lately, hospital visits have been joyful occasions. Daughter Marjorie, now living in Oak Park, Mich., has a two-year-old son. And Bob, a medical student, lives in Philadelphia with his wife and seven-month-old daughter, Lucy. It is almost completely cured.

With her children grown into healthy and happy adulthood (Paul attends Florida Southern College), Mrs. Sherman has had to problem, in her middle years, worrying about what to do with her spare time. By 1951 her accomplishment was impressively pointed up when one of her water colors won a prize at the Florida International Exhibition.

She has held one-woman shows in communities neighboring her New Rochelle, N.Y., home. And she has just had her first one-woman show in New York City, no small accomplishment for a wife and mother whose home-making years have not been easy ones.

As proof it's possible for you, an outstanding exponent of hobbies for housewives told her story in an interview recently. The story reads more like a medical case book than like the history of a woman blessed with a "wonderful husband and four lovely children"—and an award-winning talent in painting.

"I've always put my husband and children first and yet, with all the difficulties, I managed to find some time for painting," Winnie Borne Sherman says. "All the difficulties" began in 1929, just one year after the birth of Marjorie, the Sherman's first child, and shortly after the premature birth of Bob. Marjorie contracted pneumonia and Bob, bleeding dysentery.

Paul, who was born in 1933, developed asthma in 1935. By 1939 his weight was down to 25 pounds and the last born, two-year-old Lucy, had developed an allergic condition and rheumatic fever, which affected her heart and her eyes.

As she catalogued the family history, one wondered at Winnie Sherman's smooth, unlined skin and dancing eyes.

To what could she attribute her amazing hold on serenity? "Well, I do have a wonderful husband. Then, too, I'm convinced that painting helped me to keep my balance through all the troubles."

"You know, I believe a woman owes it to her family to give them as much happiness as she can. And she can't do that unless she feels a certain amount of self-satisfaction."

"For me, painting and the graphic arts were the obvious means of realizing that satisfaction. I have always loved art. I studied it at Columbia

Knowland Would Break With Reds Over 'Incidents'

WASHINGTON (UP)—Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland favors a diplomatic break with Russia or any of its satellites if there is another cold war incident involving Americans and the United States does not get "prompt" satisfaction.

Knowland conceded that a diplomatic break might wipe out whatever contact the United States has behind the Iron Curtain.

But he said this must be weighed against the continuation of spy centres in Communist embassies throughout the free world. A break in relations, he said, might also give more hope of freedom to enslaved peoples.

In any case, the problem merits "more consideration" than it was given by past administrations, Knowland said in a television interview.

Johnson-Moore In Title Mix

PLEASANTVILLE, N.J. (AP)—
At the risk of disclosing a well-kept secret, it can be safely reported that Harold Johnson finally is going to get a chance at Archie Moore's light heavyweight title Aug. 11 at Madison Square Garden.

In fact, Johnson thinks he's going to lift the crown off Archie's ancient head despite the 2½-1 odds against him.

TWO for the SHOW

By PHIL LEE

AA (Oscar Class)
A (Don't Miss)

BB (Worthwhile)
BB (For Rainy Days)
C (Go out to Meet)

CASANOVA" (Capitol)—
There is little doubt that British studios produce better farces, as a whole, than studios of other countries. A prime example is the Associated British-Pathe's "Reluctant Casanova," that guarantees a perpetual grin well interlarded with laughs rang-ling from chorle to rib-cracker.

Starring George Cole (in the title role) and an excellent supporting cast including
Veronica Hurst, Jon Pertwee,
Heather Thatcher and James Hayter, the story (originally entitled "Will Any Gentleman?") is a beautifully constructed machine for the wholesale production of mirth.

THE PLOT CONCERNS
Cole, a mousy little bank clerk saddled with (1) a rich, beautiful but domineering wife, (2) a rouse brother, and
(3) a repression. The comedy commences when Bank
Clerk Cole, intent on paying a bad debt for his brother, inadvertently gets mixed-up with a hypnotist while at a gaily show he should have been at a Rotary meeting.

Under the spell George's repression is let loose. It turns out to be a wolf. The effect this has on his banking career, his home life and his
"character" all add up to an engaging evening.

The top half of the Cap-itol's double-bill, RKO's "Dangerous Mission," can be rated only "B." It features good scenery but mediocre acting amidst a hodge-podge of plots that gives the main characters little to work on. They are Victor Mature, Piper
Laurie, Vincent Price and William Bendix.

HELICOPTER SERVICE
British European Airways has a helicopter-passenger service between London's two airports and Southampton.

Seaplane Rescues Two From Tugboat

VANCOUVER (BUP)—Two crew members of a small tug were rescued by a sea plane late Saturday night when their boat sank off Sea Island near here.

Skipper Andy Tychois and deckhand Ron Hamilton both dived off the tug Standon as she lay on her side before going to the bottom.

A pilot coming in for a landing saw the two men leaping off the boat as she keeled over.
They managed to get the ditching done as the boat was not quite under water and I landed on the water and sent a message for a bigger plane.

Pilot Leo Doucette said, "It was too rough for me to be of any assistance."

Pilot Bill Waddington landed a Beaver aircraft on the water and took the crewmen aboard.

Originality Is Keynote in Sandbox Models

Beacon, Redfern In Contest Final

Preliminary winners in Victoria's playground sandbox contest were Beacon Hill and Redfern Parks, with models of British Empire Games stadium and Clyde Beatty's Circus.

Judges picked them Friday from a field of six entries, to appear in a special exhibition in Eaton's store next week, where the public will mark ballots to decide the final winner.

Next Wednesday morning will move a ton of sand to Eaton's third floor, where the two displays will be reconstructed. Wednesday afternoon during store closure.

PUBLIC TO VOTE
Thursday, Friday and up to 4 p.m. Saturday, the public will have the opportunity to see models and vote for the winner. Models were chosen on the basis of originality, suitability, materials used, and age range of the builders.

The four judges were Dr. H. R. Anderson, former chairman of Greater Victoria Recreation Council; W. H. Warren, city parks administrator; S. W. Muirhead, Eaton's representative; and Gordon Hartley, chief playgrounds supervisor.

Beacon Hill's display was thought "very timely; a natural" by the judging panel. Seven children, ranging from 12 to 14 years, built a scale replica of the stadium, complete with competitors, race track and the flags of nations participating in British Empire Games.

TINY BINGO BOOTH
Originality was a prime feature at Redfern, where some of the circus was reproduced in infinite detail. A bingo booth, no bigger than a package of cigarettes, contained 12 bingo "games" with grains of sand used on the cards rather than kernels of corn.

All the rest of the models were thought "very good, with a new high in originality." Final winner will be announced between 4 and 5 p.m. in Eaton's, Saturday.

DARWIN ORIGIN OF SPECIES

GUA—THE CHIMP

Chimp Was Smarter Than Child, But Human Caught Up

LONDON—A credit to Darwin's theory of evolution, this baby chimpanzee matched wits with a college professor's baby and proved to be the smarter at the end of a year. Gua, the baby chimp, was raised in the same environment and with similar care as the child of Sir Cyril Burt, former psychology professor at London University, who conducted the experiment. Gua learned to use a spoon and cup several weeks before his human rival and at 12 months could respond to 20 simple commands while the child mastered only three. However, the chimp slowed down early in the second year, when the child began to talk and imitate its elders in a way the animal could not manage.

Two Engineers Die in Head-On Train Crash

Passengers Escape In Ont. Accident

WINNIPEG (CP)—Two engineers are dead as the result of a head-on collision early Sunday between a Canadian National Railway westbound transcontinental passenger train and a CNR freight train at Quibell, Ont., 177 miles east of here.

Thomas L. Alsop of Sioux Lookout, Ont., engineer of the eastbound freight, was killed in the crash. Henry Otto, also of Sioux Lookout, engineer of the passenger train, died in hospital early today from burns.

The collision occurred at the west switch of Quibell. No passengers were reported injured.

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Canadian Pacific Railway-Kettle Valley line passenger train, eastbound from Vancouver, collided with the rear of a freight train stopped at Ruby Creek about noon Sunday. There were no injuries.

Ruby Creek is 81 miles east of Vancouver. A CPR spokesman in Vancouver said the freight train, which left here earlier Sunday, had stopped at Ruby Creek, and that the passenger train struck the rear end, demolishing the caboose and derailing two freight cars.

NAMELESS BABY, FOUND AT SEA, DEAD AT 83

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Death has taken Mrs. Rosa Minnie Dathe, named for the sailing ship which found her adrift off the west coast of South America 83 years ago.

Mrs. Dathe never learned who her parents were or how it was that she was left adrift at sea. She died in hospital Friday.

Her family said Mrs. Dathe and a second infant girl were found in a lifeboat by a windjammer, the "Rosa Minnie," and brought to San Francisco.

Apparently the only survivors of a shipwreck, the girls were placed in a foundling home and later were adopted.

Florence Chadwick's Day

Hi! Today is S-Day minus six as we head down the home stretch. I suppose it has crept up on you, just as it has crept up on all of us—the fact that one week from today we will know if the Strait of Juan de Fuca can be conquered by a swimmer. This week will contain the excitement of the week before Christmas; the preparations of the week before final exams and the nervous suspense of the week before a dentist appointment.

On the actual day of the swim I don't think I will be nervous. It's not that I am over-confident. It's just that I come with time; my mind is full of questions about tides and temperatures and when I start, I think, "Well, here we go again; I wonder how we'll make out."

We will be ever so much closer to the swim Tuesday when my navigator, Frank Seehorn, arrives in Victoria. A real dynamo of a man Frank will swing into action immediately. He will be up to his ears in tide tables and temperatures and he will be talking to local experts about the strait.

On Wednesday, we are scheduled to take another trip to Port Angeles and Seehorn will really be a busy fellow over there. He will be gathering information in Port Angeles to help him plot the course of my swim.

On Friday, my brother Dick will arrive in town and will start work on his specialty—the coaching boat. Dick will make sure the boat is fully equipped for the trip over and will lay away supplies for feeding me while I am swimming.

We logged some valuable swimming time over the weekend. Jack Todd has gone over to the Empire Games in Vancouver but Al Boyd and Ken Hurn, a pair of excellent rowers, helped coach Archie McKinnon out. We did two hours Thursday, three hours Friday, four hours Saturday and tapered off with one hour Sunday. Saturday we swam out past the Willows Beach, the Oak Bay boathouse and around to the sixth hole of Oak Bay Golf Club. My swims this week start at 10 in the morning.

Aggrieved Mule Gets To Seat of Trouble

NAPLES, Italy (AP)—An aggrieved mule, apparently furious because other animals were fed first, leaped out of his stall and bit farmer Gennaro Casertano, 35, from behind today.

After operating for three hours, surgeons said Casertano will be well within 60 days, although he may not be able to sit comfortably for a long time after that.

4-Foot, 11-Inch Suspect Held In Slaying of Montreal Boy

QUEBEC (CP)—Police today swept into a lower town tenement and took into custody a little man sought for questioning in connection with the fiendish Montreal killing of six-year-old Raymond Trudeau.

The Quebec City constables hustled 43-year-old Lucien Picard into a patrol wagon and drove him to police headquarters.

Montreal police disclosed Sunday night they sought Picard, a four-foot 11-inch unemployed machinist, as a material witness in the death of the youngster, parts of whose dismembered body were found in the metropolis during the weekend.

Acting on a tip, Quebec police descended on the St. Luc tenement building at 9:45 a.m. and took Picard to headquarters without allowing him time to put on his trousers.

Police said Picard told them he had found hacked pieces of a boy's body in a suitcase in his room in Montreal but denied any connection with the case. He said that after seeing the ghastly sight he decided to leave.

Picard travelled by bus to Quebec Saturday and visited relatives at nearby Ancienne Lorette where he stayed until Sunday. He moved then to the St. Luc Street house in the workers' district of St. Sauveur police said.

Deputy police chief Alme Guillemette said Picard, a Quebecer, had been in Montreal for some time and had been living in the same Montreal room for three months.

No charge has been laid against Picard who will be held until Montreal police pick him up here later today.

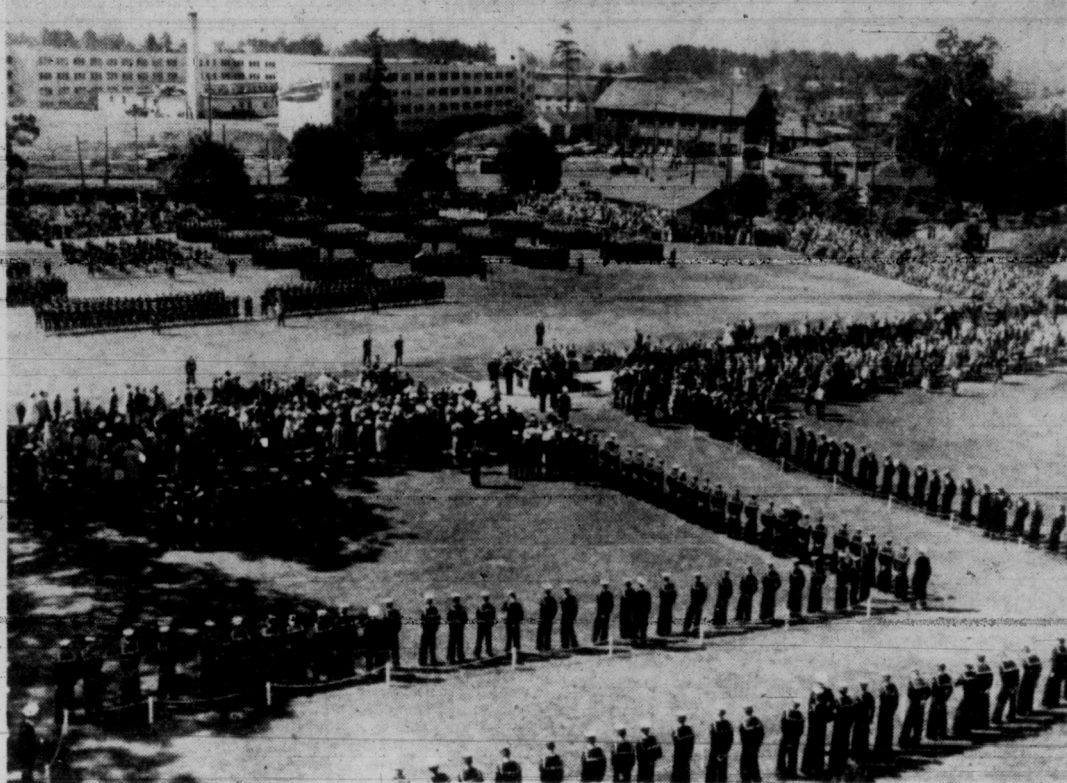

Assistant Inspector Henry Bond of the homicide squad in Montreal reported that three large knives and blood-stained bed sheets were found Sunday in the room occupied by Picard. The torso was found in a cheap satchel.

Raymond was last seen by a playmate Wednesday talking to a man near his home. First identification of his remains were made by his broken-hearted father, David Trudeau, a 34-year-old boiler shop worker.

Then Sunday roomers noticed a death-like odor rising from Picard's room and called the proprietor. He smashed the padlock on the room and found a suitcase with the rest of Raymond's body.

The torso had been hacked open from neck to stomach. Attached to it were parts of the boy's arms.

Naden Parade Square as Duke and Party Leave

5,000 Cheer Philip At Naval Ceremony

RCN Stages Impressive Show for Duke; Leaves by Plane Today En Route to Kemano

By MONTE ROBERTS

A once-in-a-lifetime privilege came to the officers and men of the Pacific Command, Royal Canadian Navy, today.

They were visited by an Admiral of the Fleet, the highest rank in the tradition-wrapped Royal Navy.

Throughout most of his Canadian tour, His Royal Highness, Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, will receive warm welcomes as a representative of the Crown.

But at HMCS Naden and HMC Dockyard today, he was greeted with the respect and honor due to a man who has seen his share of fighting at sea, and is the top-ranking officer of all the Commonwealth navies.

When the Admiral of the Fleet arrived at the upper playing field, in front of the Naden Wardroom, precisely at 10 a.m., he saw unflinching ranks of blue-clad men, their summer "white-tops" glistening in the sun, the Queen's Color whipping smartly in a brisk salt breeze blowing in from Esquimalt Harbor.

In bleachers around the temporary parade square, 5,000 watched the Duke leave his open car, and walk to the reviewing stand. He was greeted formally by Rear Admiral J. C. Hibbard, Flag Officer, Pacific Command, seconds before the trumpeter of the Naden band signalled his arrival on the stand.

The Duke wore the No. 5 blue service dress uniform of admiral of the fleet. His ribbons were: 1939-45 Star, Atlantic Star, Africa Star, Burma Star with Rosette, Italy Star, War Medal, George VI Coronation Medal, Order of the Redeemer (Greek), Military Cross (Greek), Royal Order of the Phoenix (Greek), Royal Order of George I (Greek), War Cross (Greek).

CROSSWORD

Croix de Guerre with Palm (French).

As he stood on the reviewing stand, the guard of honor presented arms, the Color was dipped, and from the saluting base at Naden barracks a 21-gun Royal salute was sounded.

The Duke stood stiffly at salute during this portion of the ceremony, which honored him as a member of the Royal family.

At its conclusion, he stepped off the reviewing stand to take up his duties as Admiral of the Fleet.

Walking at a brisk pace, he led an inspection party, first through the ranks of the guard of honor, then among the naval cadets assembled in long straight ranks across the field.

Although he walked quickly, the Duke did not neglect his duties. He stopped frequently as he caught the eye of one or another of the cadets, and chatted informally.

SALUTES SPECTATORS

At first, his eyes were only for the naval personnel he was reviewing. But each time he neared a section of the bleachers, which were jammed tight with spectators, a spontaneous burst of applause greeted him. Finally, he could resist no longer. A broad grin burst over his tanned, handsome face, and he threw an informal salute.

Two Island Men Killed In Week-End Car Crashes

British Columbia recorded six violent deaths during the week-end. Lower B.C. traffic toll this year to 45 deaths.

Dead are: GEORGE HAMILTON, a Port Alberni hospital orderly, was killed Sunday when his car hit an abutment on the bridge over Whiskey Creek, near Cameron Lake. (See story page 7.)

PAUL BINDER, 19, of Duncan, was killed early Sunday when the car he was driving went out of control three miles east of Cowichan Lake. A companion, 19-year-old Rosemarie Arnold, escaped serious injury.

JIMMY SCORRETT, 6, of North Vancouver drowned Saturday when he was pulled under the water by an undertow at Crescent Beach. An eight-year-old girl accompanying the lad said she tried to hold him and pull him out of the water, but the current was too strong.

Capt. Peter J. R. Mathieson, 79, of Vancouver. The retired Royal Naval and RCN officer was killed when the car in which he was riding crashed over an embankment in West Vancouver Saturday night.

John David Craft, 16, of Abbotsford, killed when his old model convertible rolled over several times on the highway three miles east of Abbotsford. The deaths of Capt. Mathieson and Mr. Craft brought the lower B.C. traffic toll this year to 45 deaths.

In Vancouver a 71-year-old woman was reported in satisfactory condition in hospital Sunday after having a leg amputated. She was injured when she ran into the side of a Vancouver police car Sunday night. The woman's name has not been released.

Pakistan Team Happy; $1,505 Recovered

VANCOUVER (CP)—It was smiles instead of tears today for members of the Pakistan team in the British Empire Games here.

Police reported that $1,505 in cash carried away in a 250-pound strongbox from Empire Village on Friday was recovered intact.

Victim Was Jubilee Lab Technician

By PETE LOUDON

A 26-year-old Jubilee Hospital laboratory technician, Miss Pauline Rowbotham, was identified by Saanich police today as Victoria's first summer drowning victim.

Her body was recovered from Beaver Lake at about 8 p.m. Sunday.

Miss Rowbotham, who lived at 1726 Carrick Street, was one of a party of eight girls, mostly hospital workers, who went to the lake for an after-supper swim.

One of her companions, Miss Audrey Ellis, also a lab worker, said there was no apparent reason for the tragedy. The girls missed Miss Rowbotham while changing after their swim.

Miss Ellis recalled that she had last seen her friend sitting on a raft, but no one had seen her swimming. Friends began diving after a beach search revealed nothing. The body was found a few moments later, by Lloyd Scott, 1194 Old Esquimalt Road. He found the dead woman face down on the lake bottom about 75 feet off-shore.

Brentwood electrical contractor, Victor Dawson applied artificial respiration until firemen arrived from Saanich with a resuscitator. The firemen worked on the girl until the arrival of Dr. E. L. McNiven, who pronounced life extinct.

Parents of the dead girl, Mr. and Mrs. William Rowbotham, Stranraer, Sask., were notified and were expected to arrive here today by plane. Also notified were cousins, Mr. and Mrs. J. Sims, 2834 Adelaide.

Miss Rowbotham had been employed at Jubilee for two years. She was a graduate of the University of Saskatchewan.

She is survived by one sister and five brothers.

Miss Ellis said her friend was in excellent health and was always interested in athletics. She took part in curling and tennis but was not a very good swimmer.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by McCall Brothers. Saanich police said an inquest into the drowning will be held at McCall Brothers Wednesday at 10 a.m., coroner E. C. Hart presiding.

GUATEMALA FIGHTS NEW ARMY REBELLION

GUATEMALA CITY (AP)—Cadets and officers of Guatemala's Military Academy revolted this morning. Forces of the government of Col. Carlos Castillo Armas moved to put down the rebellion.

Troops of the Aurora army base at the Guatemala airport were reported to have joined the rebellious cadets. Other reports said Communist elements, defeated in a brief civil war that ousted Red supporters from the government last month, had mobilized.

Conditional Permit Granted Frobisher

TRAIL—Lands and Forests Minister R. E. Sommers today announced the provincial government has given the go-ahead to Frobisher-Ventures plan for development of B.C.'s northwest.

Northwest Power Industries Ltd., one of the Frobisher-Ventures group of companies, will be awarded a conditional water license to initiate a development that will "entail expenditures in the neighborhood of $270,000,000 within an eight-year span, and eventually lead to a program estimated at over $700,000,000," said Mr. Sommers.

The first step of the development will provide 120,000 horsepower by 1957, leading to the first major objective of 880,000 horsepower by 1962.

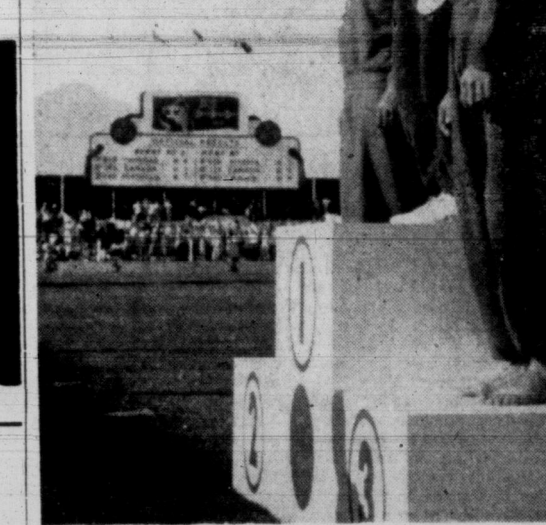

Speaking before a Social Credit Day rally in his home riding, Mr. Sommers said: "As evidence of their preparedness and good faith," Northwest Power Industries Ltd. will post a very substantial bond...

...running into the millions of dollars... which will be subject to annual review, and will be forfeited in the event the company fails in any respect to live up to the terms of agreement."

Negotiations have been commencing with Northwest Power Industries but numerous other interests, including Frobisher, Quebec Metallurgical Industries, Falconbridge Nickel, and Reynolds Aluminum are participating in the overall plan.

Trinidad on Top

The man who was expected to show his heels to all comers in the 100-yard race at the British Empire Games Saturday had to settle for third place. A 19-year-old student from Trinidad, Michael Agostini, centre, equalled the Games record of 9.6 seconds for the 100-yard dash to edge Canada's Don MacFarlane, left, and Australia's Hector "Hurricane" Hogan, co-holder of the world 100-yard record of 9.3.

Tense B.E.G. Races Expected Tuesday

VANCOUVER—The track and field stadium was figuratively "dark" at the British Empire Games here today.

The spotlight switched from the stadium to the cycle track and, more especially, the Games' swim pool on the University of B.C.'s campus, and there is electric tension in the air concerning Tuesday's track events.

Topping the list is the torrid duel expected in the men's 880-yard final. Favored is England's champion, 19-year-old Derek Johnson, who Saturday came within four-tenths of the Games' record of 1:32 in winning his sprint.

Les Laing of Jamaica, who was eliminated in the 100-yard preliminaries Saturday, is also regarded as a serious threat. (See Sports Pages.)

PROTOCOL SOLVED... WALLACE STAYS HOME

Royal protocol posed a touchy problem today which Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace solved by deciding to stay home from the Duke of Edinburgh's formal visit to the Royal Canadian Navy's Pacific command headquarters at Esquimalt.

Wallace is the Queen's representative in British Columbia, and protocol normally would decree that he be accorded honors due his rank when he appears officially on his home grounds unless Queen Elizabeth herself was the guest.

But the Duke is not the sovereign—he is the province's guest, and with the lieutenant-governor safely at home in Government House, the possibility of collision of rank was neatly avoided.

It was a courtesy extended to a guest by his host. Wallace greeted the Duke when he arrived from Ottawa and Rivers, Man., Sunday, and the Duke stayed overnight at Government House Sunday night.

Hope there ain't any fog in th' Strait when Flo sets out. Could be a nasty bump if buoy meets gal.

Well, at last we've redeemed ourselves. Th' Duke has seen that th' sun CAN shine here.

Seems most o' thet chaos they were talkin' about at th' Games is goin' t' lie in whut they do t' th' records.
